MAN IN DEATH PLOT CASE GETS ALIBI TANGLED

Genetti's Landlady Denies He Slept Home Day Infernal Machine Was Set.

ADMITS NOW HE LIED

Declares He Was Fishing and When Questioned Says That Too, Was Lie.

CLOTHES ALL MUDDY

Leaves Home With Bundle and Returns After 24 Hours, but Keeps Silent.

DESCRIPTION OF WEAPON IN DEATH TRAP CASE.

It is a double-barreled, old-fashioned derringer.

One barrel is above the other.

The barrels are of nickel, three inches long.

It is of 38-calibre and the handle was destroyed by the explosion.

The trigger guard had been filed away.

The whole weapon intact was five inches long.

Joseph Genetti's landlady, Mrs. Josephine Pellegrini of Glen Carbon, Ill., contradicted to a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday Genetti's statement that he ate dinner and slept at her house Saturday, June 29, the day when the infernal machine which killed August Genetti, Joseph's cousin, and Louis Cologna, is believed to have been arranged in the tool room of Mine No. 17 at Collinsville.

Genetti is now a prisoner in the Collinsville jail, held since Saturday. The warrant on which he is held charges him with attempting to poison Kate Genetti, his first cousin, and sister of one of the men slain, whose rejected suitor he was. He is known to have blamed Kate's brother, August Genetti, for the girl's refusal to marry him after she had once promised to do so.

The charge of attempted poisoning, which has at no time been the chief motive of the authorities in wishing to hold Genetti, seems likely to fail, through the statement of Dr. John H. Siegel of Collinsville, who analyzed the contents of the bottle which Joseph Genetti gave Kate Genetti and urged her to drink. He says the fluid was not poisonous.

The Collinsville authorities say they will probably drop the poisoning charge, but will hold Genetti on his own admission that he threatened Kate's life when she refused to marry him, displaying a revolver.

Was Away All Day.

"Joe Genetti left my house that Saturday morning after breakfast," said Mrs. Pellegrini, "and he did not come back until 7 o'clock Sunday morning. When he left he carried a bundle, and I asked him if he was moving. He said no, he had to go away a little while, but would be back.

"When he got back Sunday morning, he was tired out, and was covered with mud from head to foot. He was hungry, but he wouldn't stop to eat until he had cleaned the mud off his clothes and his shoes. Then he ate a big breakfast, and after that went to bed and slept all morning and part of the afternoon."

When asked by the reporter where he had been on the Saturday in question, Genetti said he was about his boarding house all day, eating dinner there, and that he had spent the night there.

He was then told of his landlady's statement.

"I didn't sleep at the boarding house that night," Genetti then said. "I was out fishing all night.

"I came back that night and stayed at Curly's saloon." This is a half mile from Glen Carbon.

Gets All Tangled Up.

When told of the statement of "Curly" that Genetti had not slept at his saloon, the prisoner said he spent the night with his friend, Joe Zadra.

Zadra refused to make a statement for publication. When questioned by Mayor Schoonover and Marshal Soma of Glen Carbon he said that Genetti had not been with him on the night in question.

Chief of Police Blake of Collinsville has been told that three acquaintances of Joseph Genetti saw him on the Saturday night in question outside Charles Nevero's saloon, half a mile from Consolidated Mine No. 17, where the death trap tragedy occurred on the following Monday. He will endeavor to obtain the testimony of these young men.

Pistol Double-Barreled.

The pistol which was rigged inside August Genetti's powder and tool chest, and which caused the doubly fatal explosion when his chum, Cologna, opened the chest, was examined Monday in the office of Supt. Houck of No. 17, by Chief Blake of Collinsville and a Post-Dispatch reporter.

It is a double [illegible] pistol of an unusual type, with [illegible] barrel above the

SCHMITZ IS GIVEN FIVE YEARS; DENOUNCES JUDGE

Court Replies, Scoring Mayor for "Brazen Effrontery" and Threatening to Jail His Lawyer.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, convicted of extortion, was today sentenced to five years in the San Quentin Penitentiary. When the sentence was pronounced there was a remarkable outburst of applause from the hundreds of persons who crowded Judge Dunne's courtroom.

Sentence today followed the recent conviction of Schmitz for extorting $1175 from French restaurant keepers of San Francisco.

As the last words of the sentence fell from the Judge's lips the great crowd that had stood throughout the dramatic scene sent up a thunderous cheer.

"Good for you," shouted a man in the back of the room. His ejaculation was echoed and re-echoed by one after another of the spectators. Several threw their hats into the air. Others scrambled upon chairs to look over the shoulders of the crowd. The greatest confusion prevailed.

Judge Scores.

Attorney Fairall of the defense, raising his voice above the din, called to Judge Dunne:

"Your Honor, this cheering is a very unseemly occurrence."

"Well," retorted Judge Dunne, with spirit, "if we had a Sheriff worthy of the name it would have been stopped instantly."

Sheriff Thomas O'Neill was standing inside the rail. He turned to the Court and protested. "Nobody could have stopped that, your honor."

Special Agent Burns of the prosecution led a number of bailiffs and said: "Clear the courtroom! Clear the courtroom!"

Wouldn't Leave Court.

But only a few of the hundreds of curious and apparently delighted men obeyed the sharp order. Some of them were hustled unceremoniously out into the hallways. About one hundred others kept their vantage places around the counsel table, where Schmitz sat dictating a statement to the newspaper men. The dramatic atmosphere was heightened by a staff of newspaper photographers who exploded flashlight after flashlight, until the courtroom was so filled with smoke that it became stifling.

The sentencing of the convicted Mayor was in one respect without a parallel in the criminal annals of San Francisco. Half a dozen times Judge Dunne was interrupted by Schmitz, who protested in strong words against the "delivery of a lecture" instead of the pronouncement of judgment. He accused the Court of unnecessarily humiliating him and giving opportunity for further humiliation by the reporting of his remarks in the press.

Once, replying to the prisoner, Judge Dunne said:

"Such brazen effrontery was probably no more than should be expected and it was the duty of the Court to hear it in patience."

At another time Attorney Metson of the defense interposed a vigorous objection, in support of his client, to "the Court's lecture."

Lectures Schmitz's Lawyer.

Judge Dunne's reply was that Mr. Metson, instead of interrupting the proceedings, ought to be given a day in court to answer the charge that he had attempted to tamper with the jury which convicted Schmitz.

Metson, restraining himself, calmly answered in the same spirit, saying that he was ready to answer any charge that was made against him.

Judge Dunne warned Metson that another interruption would provoke a jail sentence for contempt.

The weather broke several records before noon today. This was the hottest day in the year and no relief in sight. The temperature at 7 a. m. was 79, 4 degrees higher than yesterday and 5 degrees higher than Friday, the hottest day of the year until that time. The temperature climbed continuously and at noon was 91, 3 degrees higher than at the same hour yesterday and 2 degrees higher than on Friday.

This indicates that a higher temperature than 93 will be reached during the afternoon, when the sun has been pelting down on St. Louis a few hours longer.

The official forecast: "Fair and warmer tonight and Tuesday; southwest winds."

"BILLIE" THE PRIZE-WINNING BABY IN GREAT CONTEST

Full of Quaint Sayings Which His Aunt, Who Wrote of Him, Cherishes.

Mrs. Minnie Davis of 3625 Grand avenue won the prize of $5 offered by the Post-Dispatch for the brightest saying by a baby. She told a story about her nephew, "Billie," who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cregler, formerly of 523 North Spring avenue. Mr Cregler is a traveling salesman for a Cleveland house. Billie is at present with his parents in Wisconsin. Mrs. Minnie Davis says "home is not what it used to be," since Billie went away. He was the life of the family, and his quaint attempts to imitate his father kept them constantly amused. His utter unconsciousness that he was doing anything funny made his antics all the more laughable.

He is quite anxious to talk "like grown folks do," as was evidenced by frequent self corrections. He had been sitting for some time in his little chair, one day, when becoming restive, he said to his mother: "Well, I fink I'll go out and play. He hesitated a moment, then with a very disgusted look, he added: "Now just listen to me say 'I fink I'll go out,' when I could just as well say 'I sink I'll go out.'"

CAUGHT HIM TWICE IN ONE DAY

Dr. E. J. Neville was arrested twice by the same deputy for automobile scorching Sunday on Manchester road. Deputy Sturdy of Valley Park halted Dr. Neville as he scorched outbound and took a $200 bond for an appearance before Justice Brooks Tuesday morning.

Returning with Max Koehler of the American Brewing Co. and Oscar Johnson of Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Co., the three were stopped by Deputy Sturdy and each left a $200 bond for appearance before the Valley Park justice.

GRANT ONE OF 4,000,000 FIT FOR PRESIDENT

Son of General Says That Is His Only Reason for Running.

NO ISSUE AT PRESENT

Says He Stands on Democratic Platform—Is Studying Sentiment.

Jesse R. Grant, son of Gen. U. S. Grant, is in St. Louis to announce his readiness to accept the Democratic nomination for President. Mr. Grant is at the Southern Hotel with H. H. Childers, member of the Speakers' Bureau of the National Democratic Committee. Mr. Grant is to visit several Southern states.

Reporters were advised in advance by Mr. Childers of Mr. Grant's coming and that he had been mentioned as a probable candidate.

Because St. Louis is his birthplace and the West and South are clamoring for a Western man other than Mr. Bryan, Mr. Grant believes, like Mr. Childers, that he can satisfy the requirements.

May Be Watterson's Dark Horse.

Henry Watterson of Kentucky has been talking of a "dark horse." Mr. Grant was asked if he thought Mr. Watterson had him in mind.

"I can't say," he answered. "I have never talked politics with Mr. Watterson, although we are old acquaintances. It is possible he may be considering me."

Mr. Grant was born on the Grant farm in St. Louis County 48 years ago. After the election of his father to the presidency he went to California, remaining until seven years ago, when he moved to New York. He is a mining and civil engineer.

Mr. Grant bears a striking resemblance to his father. He is of medium build, with broad shoulders and a square face expressive of determination.

Not a Candidate Yet.

"I am really not a candidate yet," said he to a Post-Dispatch reporter in his apartments at the Southern Hotel. "There is much political surveying to be done before I conclude whether the people want me in the race.

"It seems somebody is wanted besides Mr. Bryan and I see no reason why I should not have an excellent chance.

"I have no right at all to seek the nomination so far as my record as an office holder is concerned. Nor have I talked until the people got tired of listening to me. There are 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 men in this country, any one of whom could fill the presidential chair I believe I'm one of them; that's the only excuse I can give for running.

As one of the rank and file I have been active in the Democratic party. Although my father was a Republican and a brother, Fred, is, the Democracy always had a fascination for me. It seems to be the party of the masses.

Is a Western Man.

"New York knows nothing about my political intentions. If there is any credit to come of this thing Missouri should have it. I look upon myself as a Westerner.

"When the West and South have a definite program the East will fall into line.

"I have never been a candidate for office. At a political meeting I never even go on the platform; just stay right down among the people and observe things. It has always been my desire to work as a private."

"Is there any particular issue on which you will appeal for votes?"

"None that I can think of now or rather that I wish to discuss at this time. I shall certainly stand on the platform of my party.

"The Democratic party has always been known as the party of the people, while the Republican organization has championed the cause of the capitalistic class.

"Under the leadership of President Roosevelt the Republican party is practically professing and practising the same principles as we are. About the only difference between the two is the point of view, that is to say on vital public questions."

Won't Discuss Bryan.

"Is it your judgment that you can get the Missouri delegation away from Bryan?"

"I wouldn't like to say anything on that score. I am merely feeling out sentiment. It may be after I have finished my trip through Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana and other Southern States that I will conclude not to run. It all depends on how I am received."

Mr. Grant was the guest of honor Sunday evening at a dinner at the St. Louis Club by Lewis T. Tune, James E. Smith, president of the Business Men's League and other well-known St. Louisans were there.

CUPID'S AGENTS FORM A UNION

Forty Missouri Circuit clerks and recorders met at the Laclede Hotel Monday morning to organize to prevent troublesome results over issuing marriage licenses. Recorder Charles F. Joy of St. Louis, ex-Congressman, who issues the local permits to wed, was present.

"It's like this," said A. H. Whitney of Mexico, recorder of Audrain County, to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "Under the present law if we refuse to issue a marriage license to a couple that is entitled to one, we are liable to a fine of $500.

"If we issue a license to a couple that is not entitled to one, we are liable to a suit for damages by the parents of the contracting parties.

"We propose to recommend some legislation that will make our official positions less dangerous financially."

No business was transacted at the inaugural session Monday except to elect J. E. Boggs, Circuit Clerk of Boone County, temporary chairman of the organization. A permanent organization will be effected Tuesday.

Among those attending the meeting are Oak Hunter, Randolph County; C. E. Howell, Miller County; S. J. Hensley, St. Francois County; H. W. McNeil, Lafayette County; W. M. Detherage, Shannon County; W. P. Huck, Ste. Genevieve County; W. F. Walter, St. Charles County; J. W. Whalen and W. L. Wright, Charlton County; J. W. Sydnor, Lafayette County; Charles Humme, Jefferson County; Henry Andrae, Cole County; H. E. Bonebrake, Phelps County; Hugh Hinton, Randolph County; S. H. Kellar, Newton County; L. W. OWNER OF GARAGE SHOT IN ROW BY JUDGE HAUGHTON

Tragedy Follows Quarrel Regarding a Charge of Repairing an Automobile Owned by Former Justice.

In a quarrel over charges for repairing an automobile, R. B. Haughton, formerly a Justice of the Peace, shot and seemingly fatally wounded John Berry, president of the Berry Automobile Repair and Rental Co., at 1:15 p. m. Monday.

The men were in an alley near Spring avenue and Delmar boulevard, where Haughton keeps his automobile. Two shots were fired. One struck Berry in the right groin, passing completely through him. At the City Hospital it is said that there is little chance for his recovery.

Haughton has a suite of rooms at the Beers Hotel, and Berry lives at Creve Coeur, Mo., and has a garage in the rear of 3918 Washington boulevard.

According to a statement made by Berry after he was shot he went to his garage at 12:30 and found a note asking him to go to the stable where Haughton's machine is kept. He went there and found Haughton alone.

The men had been together more than half an hour when the quarrel commenced. There were no eyewitnesses, but several persons who were near the stable have told the police that they heard loud talking and that money was mentioned frequently by both men.

After shooting Berry Haughton ran east through the alley to Spring avenue and north to Olive street. Berry followed him, shouting:

"Stop that man. He shot me!"

A policeman jumped from a passing car and arrested Haughton just as Berry fell unconscious to the sidewalk.

Haughton asked to be permitted to go to his rooms at the Beers Hotel, but his request was denied. He was taken to the Manchester Avenue Police Station, where he said that he would not make a statement until he had seen a lawyer.

Berry was hurried to the City Hospital. It was found that the bullet had pierced a spot generally considered vital, and the physicians said that he has little chance to recover.

Berry is 50 years old and a widower. Haughton was one of the founders of the Jefferson Club, and for many years he was prominent in local Democratic politics.

POLICE THWART MOTHER TRYING TO REGAIN SON

They Release Woman Who Now Has Custody of Child.

When Mrs. Mary Davidson was released from custody by the police of the Carr Street Station Monday morning after her arrest had been obtained through the trailing done by Charlie Martin, a 15-year-old boy detective, Mrs. Emma Richard of 2029 Carr street again lost trace of her 9-year-old son who she says is being wrongfully held by the other woman.

Mrs. Davidson took the boy and her own daughter after her release across the Eads Bridge, according to her former neighbors at 1533 Franklin avenue, where Charlie Martin says he found Mrs. Davidson last Sunday.

A writ of habeas corpus issued in Clayton, requiring Mrs. Davidson to produce the boy, Ward Richard, in court, had not been served when Capt. O'Malley of the Carr Street Station ordered her release. Mrs. Richard applied for the writ after she saw her son with Mrs. Davidson at Delmar Garden on July 4.

Mrs. Richard said that this was the first meeting with her son in seven years, during which period she had been searching for him.

Had Fight in Garden.

At the garden she tried to take Ward from his foster mother. A struggle ensued and Mrs. Davidson carried the boy away. Mrs. Richard says that she lost trace of them from that moment.

Charlie Martin of 922 North Fifteenth street read of the case in the Post-Dispatch. He thought that he knew the missing boy from the description given by Mrs. Richard.

He says that he went to Mrs. Richard and told her that he would find her son if she made it worth while.

In the lodging house where Mrs. Davidson resided he learned that the boy was there with Mrs. Davidson. He watched the premises, after notifying Mrs. Richard.

About 7 p. m. Sunday, Charlies says, Mrs. Davidson, with her young daughter, and the boy, went east on Franklin avenue.

Boy Followed Woman.

"I followed them a block away," said young Martin. "I made out that she was going over the bridge into Illinois. At Seventh and Carr streets I told a policeman that she was Mrs. Davidson and that she was taking a child that didn't belong to her. I also said that I knew where the mother was."

Mrs. Richard had been advised by Capt. O'Malley to engage a lawyer and go into the courts if she wants to contest her right to Ward. Capt. O'Malley says that Mrs. Davidson exhibited letters purporting to have been written by Mrs. Richard giving Mrs. Davidson the boy. Mrs. Richard denies that she wrote the letters.

Child Dies While Father Hunts in Vain for a Physician.

Two deaths from heat and three prostrations were reported in the 24 hours ending at noon Monday. Throughout the morning the temperature ranged from three to five degrees higher than at the same hours Sunday, being 83 at 8 a. m. and 71 at noon.

The child had been suffering from heat all day Sunday, but a physician was not called. Home remedies were applied by the parents, but at midnight Sunday the condition of the child became so serious that the father called up Dr. G. C. Herman of 2800 Thomas street. Dr Herman was not in. BOY THOUGHT DEAD IS SAVED BY AIRPUMP

Three-Year-Old Howard Gentry Swallowed Pebble While at Play.

LODGED IN WINDPIPE

Lad Became Unconscious from Lack of Air, but Father Restored Him.

"Feel pretty good," says 3-year-old Howard Gentry, who was pronounced dead five times in 10 days.

Ruddy-cheeked and chipper, Howard sat on the veranda of the Mayfield Sanitarium Monday looking for pictures of automobiles in the advertising pages of a magazine.

Playing on a sand pile near his home at Big Springs, Montgomery County, Mo., 100 miles from St. Louis, the little fellow found "a whole lot of pretty jacks," little round stones. He put some of them in his mouth and one of them slipped down his throat.

"I choked dead five times, but papa and the doctors saved me," he said Monday. "If I hadn't died the last time the doctors were going to cut me."

The part taken by Thomas Owen Gentry, the father, in saving the boy's life was no small one. When the child gasped for want of air, his father would breathe into Howard's mouth, giving the air in his own lungs to save his baby's life. To do this he would have to take long, deep breaths in rapid succession and the effort was so great that after a few minutes the strong, hard-muscled farmer would be exhausted. But each time he was rewarded by seeing a trace of color return to the boy's cheeks.

Thought to Be Dead.

Howard swallowed the stone two weeks ago. He ran to the house and told his mother, Mrs. Anna Belle Gentry. While she was hurrying to him he gasped and fell to the floor unconscious.

Mrs. Gentry called a neighbor, Mrs. James Sneathen. Failing to revive the boy, they sent for Dr. Leslie, who told them Howard was dead.

While Mrs. Gentry bent over the child she noticed a slight quivering of the lips. By this sign she knew that there was still hope. Dr. Hoffman was summoned. He restored the boy to consciousness, but could not remove the obstruction. That night Howard ate a hearty supper and seemed well, except for occasional coughing spells. The next morning, Tuesday of week before last, he again became unconscious and was thought to be dead. Arrangements for the funeral were being made when he showed signs of life.

Friday and Saturday there were similar lapses. Sunday and Monday Howard seemed very well, but Tuesday he again sank into coma. That night his father and mother hurried to St. Louis with him and took him to the Mayfield Sanitarium.

Airpump Used Successfully.

Day and night the father sat by the boy's bed and at intervals he breathed the breath of his own strong life into the tiny frame. Dr. Charles Wagner made four X-ray pictures, one of which showed the stone lodged in the windpipe near the entrance to the lungs.

All preparations had been made for an operation which has to have been last Friday at 11 a. m. by Drs. Mayfield, Tyzzer and Osborn of the sanitarium staff. But at 5 a. m. Howard "died" again. The coma was deeper than any which preceded it, and the doctors saw that only a heroic effort would save the child's life. In his condition a surgical operation was out of the question, so they did just what a plumber does when a pipe is stopped. They used an air pump.

It was not so scientific an operation, but it did the work. A rubber tube was inserted in the unconscious boy's windpipe and pushed downward until it entered the left lobe of the lung. Then the pump was set to work. Gradually the pressure was increased until it was 15 pounds to the square inch. Then the tube was suddenly withdrawn so that the pent-up air, in escaping, might force the obstruction upward through the windpipe.

This it did, but just as the stone emerged into Howard's mouth he regained consciousness, gulped and swallowed it again. This time, though, it did not go into the lung cavity, but into the alimentary canal and from there to the stomach. Its recovery then was a very simple matter. The stone was almost spherical and weighed 25 grains. It was nearly one-eighth of an inch in diameter.

BOY WHO SWALLOWED PEBBLE AND HOW OBSTRUCTION WAS REMOVED

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

IT WAS a deuced hot night for "The Dacing Girl" or any other daughter of Eve to weave a web of tempestuous passion for the ensnaring of the souls of men, but Virginia Harned did it at the Suburban last night—and, apparently, to the high satisfaction of a crowded house. Henry Arthur Jones' story of the Quaker maiden who preferred the fleshpots of Egypt to the self-denying faith of her fathers was told in all its intensity—including the famous "Harden fall" down a staircase, which was one of the prime elements of the first American hit of the play.

This fall, however, provoked by the denunciation of Drusilla Ives, "the dancing girl," by her stern old father in the third act, where he discovers that she is the notorious Diana Valrose of evil London life, is not by any means the most impressive moment of the drama. There are at least two emotional climaxes which surpass it in legitimate dramatic power—those of the scene where Drusilla does her ultimate best for the tempting and ruination of John Christison, and where she casts off Valentine Danecourt, Earl of Guisebury, upon learning of the wreck of his fortunes. In these scenes Miss Harned was distinctly at her strongest, and in the first she led up to a hit by A. H. Van Buren, as John Christison, which was really the big hit of the night, while in the second, William Courtenay, her leading man, did his most effective work.

Miss Harned plays the role of Drusilla precisely, I imagine, as that character was conceived by its creator—an utterly soulless, vanity-loving, cold and cruel woman—and the result is a portrait of exceptional strength in moral ugliness. But it is also a repellant and depressing portrait, because a nature as baldly hard and unloving as that of Drusilla cannot but impress the average mind as being monstrous, void of the faintest reason for an excusing of its sins and itself destroying all possible sympathy or regret for its final tragic fate. Nevertheless, it has to be played along these lines—a Camille without Camille's natural loveliness of soul—and Miss Harned is artist enough to meet the requirements of the situation. She scored an undeniable success with last night's house in so doing, repulsive though Drusilla lived in memory thereafter.

The star's support was exceptionally strong, even for the excellent Suburban company. Both Mr. Courtenay and Mr. Van Buren played with the keenest appreciation of the opportunities of their respective roles—Van Buren with especial forcefulness—and came near making a triple-star production of "The Dancing Girl." Next in importance was the work of Florence Fisher in the pretty and appealing part of Sybil Crake. Miss Fisher doing so well as to share with the star the applause and curtain calls given at the close of one of the four acts. Her sweet, true and expressive voice was heard to singular advantage—if this swiftly rising young actress will just slur the terminal "r" a bit more in her speech, softening it and robbing it of a "schoolmarm" twang that otherwise attaches to it, her enunciation especially in English roles, will be vastly improved. She was very magnetic and winning in last night's effort, and the audience made much of her.

The old David Ives of Harry Fenwick was really a "big" piece of character work, simple, truthful and impressive. Morris McHugh made a good minor hit as Crake, the Duke of Guisebury's business agent, and Walter Gilbert had another familiar role as the feather-brained Reggie Slingsby, a friend of Guisebury's. The Lady Bawtry of Miss Helen Courtney deserves favorable mention, and Miss Mamie Cunningham of St. Louis, who appeared in the role of Sister Beatrice, in the last act, acquitted herself very creditably indeed. The scenic production of the play was painstaking and effective.

Caliendo's Band at Highlands.

Caliendo and his Venetian Band began their engagement at Forest Park Highlands yesterday, creating a distinctly favorable impression. The organization is composed exclusively of Italian musicians, and its work is characterized by a Latin fervor that adds much to the emphasis and dramatic interpretation of the program numbers. Excellent soloists are also among its features.

The new vaudevile bill, headed by Howard and Bland, a clever comedy sketch team, is well up to the high standard already set by the Highlands olio. Among its other features are Willis and Hassan, daring equilibrists; Mlle. Chester and her $10,000 statue dog; Adele McNeil, vocalist; Ethel MacDonough, drummer girl, and the new polyscope moving pictures.

Arthur Demming at Mannion's.

At Mannion's Park a new and brightly entertaining vaudeville bill was put on for the week beginning yesterday. It is headed by Arthur Deming, one of the cleverest black-face comedians on the stage, who scored a hit well maintaining the local popularity which he had gained in former engagements. Among other features are Sarazell and Razell, in a comedy sketch of which eccentric piano playing is an important part; Larkins and Burns, eccentric comedians, and Huegel Brothers, acrobats.

Special acts by four local competitors in the vaudeville tournament will be additional features of Tuesday night's program.

Heim at Cherokee Garden.

Gustav Heim's orchestra delighted the crowds at Cherokee Garden yesterday. The organization is steadily increasing in popularity, and it is becoming the fashion for West End folk to visit Cherokee Garden for Heim's "musical evenings." The programs to be offered this week are announced as of special attractiveness.

Trained Animals at Lemp Park.

Trained lions in a clever act, a dog and monkey show and an old-fashioned circus are among the features of the new bill at Lemp's Park, opening yesterday, and good crowds were drawn to that resort. The program is of much attractiveness and a big week's business is expected.

"The Ways of Russia" at Eclipse.

"The Ways of Russia," a thrilling melodrama, will be the new Eclipse Garden bill put on for the week beginning this evening. Arthur Stanley and Mrs. Etta Allen Stanley take the leading roles, and an excellent production, with new scenery and costumes, is promised. "The Mysterious Detective" closed its week last night.

"Robert Emmet" at Heights.

Robert Emmett, the great Irish patriot, is undoubtedly destined to turn all kinds of somesaults in his martyr grave this week if he has any way of knowing what's going on at West End Heights. With seven night and several matinee exhibitions on tap for the week the result from the shakeup across the River Styx is anxiously awaited on this side of the Mississippi. He may discover he isn't dead after all.

It isn't any fault of Frank La Rue, leading man at the Heights, who is playing the Emmet role most acceptably as it is laid down for him in the lines. He is at his best in the thrilling dock scene, where, condemned to die as an enemy of England, he protests against the injustice of his fate. The escape, the farce battle and other similar scenes would set the winter gallery gods of a 10-20-30 melodrama house wild.

Miss Fuller does justice to the leading female role of Sarah Curran and Alice Donovan makes a typical little wild Irish rose. The general support is adequate.

The exasperatingly long intermissions—three of them were at least 15 minutes long, and when the curtain finally did go up all the visible change was the dropping of a curtain—should be shortened.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething relieves the child from pain.

"The Geisha" at Delmar Garden.

"The Geisha," perhaps the most musical of the many Japanese comic operas, is the current bill at Delmar Garden. It is not a musical comedy—it is real comic opera, tuneful and colorful and with a story that is sane and at times touching. It is deficient in comedy, but is brimming full of songs and a pleasant succession of stage pictures is given.

John E. Young, of whom the Delmar audiences expect much, has little to do in the role of Wun Hi, proprietor of the Japanese tea house. In the first act he was continually running on and off the stage, introducing the other characters and explaining what their aims and schemes were. In the second act he had more of a chance and he developed an imitation tenor voice in his "Ching-a-Ling-a-Ling" song that may some day make him a rival of Frank Rushworth. Young was funny in a droll sort of way, though we like him better as a sputtering German than as a pigtailed Chinaman.

Edwin A. Clark has the real chance of the piece and he made the most of it. He used that baritone voice of his to good effect in half a dozen songs and he was an agreeable lover when flirting with the Geisha girl or when with his fiancee—fiasco. Young called her—winsome Blanche Deyo. Their toy duet, after Miss Deyo had made her entrance pulling a jinriksha instead of riding in it, was charming.

Miss Deyo has the best role that has been given to her at Delmar and she knew it. As the English girl she was sweet and pleasing, and, when she put on the disguise of a Geisha girl and sang the "Chon Kina" song, she was altogether alluring and one could sympathize with the restlessness of William Herman West, who played the Marquis Imari and served as chief of police. He could not sit still while the bonus Geisha was singing and dancing to show her value.

Miss Caecilia Rhoda had the title role and many charming songs. She sang them well, so well in fact that her encores did much to make the performance last fifteen minutes longer than the schedule. She showed a coyness in the kissing duet with Clark in which she gave new life to a situation that is as old as comic opera.

"The Geisha" is the best-balanced production that has been given this season at Delmar. Each performer seems to fit perfectly into the piece and the result is pleasing. Miss Alice Hills again has a chance to use her fine contralto voice and she should have this chance every week, even if a song has to be interpolated. She sings too well to be used only for her character comedy work.

The opera has not been seen in St. Louis in several years and is seldom used by summer stock organizations. This may be due to the fact that it requires a large cast of capable performers. This cast is available at Delmar and the audience last night showed that "The Geisha" is popular.

SURVIVED BALLOON TRIPS, HURT IN AUTO

DR. JULIAN THOMAS.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

NEW YORK, July 8.—Dr. Julian P. Thomas, the aeronaut, is in a serious condition at Fordham Hospital today, suffering from a compound fracture of the leg and internal injuries received in an automobile accident last night.

The machine, carrying the aeronaut and two women, crashed into a trolley pole in the Bronx. Physicians said today Dr. Thomas might have to suffer the amputation of his leg.

Miss Florence Haas, an actress, who, with Miss Grace Rogers, was with Dr. Thomas when the accident occurred, was so seriously injured physicians amputated her left leg today. Miss Rogers was injured internally, but probably will recover.

Dr. Thomas and his friends were traveling at a high rate of speed down Jerome avenue. Near the entrance of Woodlawn Cemetery the road makes a sharp turn, which the aeronaut evidently did not see in the darkness.

The machine crashed into a heavy trolley pole and Dr. Thomas and his two companions were flung out of the machine as if from a catapult. The automobile was reduced to scrap iron by the impact. The report of the crash was heard for some distance, and mounted police and autoists hurried to the aid of the injured, who were taken to the hospital.

Dr. Thomas was found to have sustained a fracture of the right leg and to have suffered internal injuries. His body was covered with bruises.

SOCIALISTS HAD FUN IN BATTLE OF BEAN BAGS

Six Thousand "Comrades" Spend Day in Groves of Montesano.

FAVORITE BOOKS HANDY

Several Bruised by Boatmen's Club in Crush on Return.

The bean bag ruled the annual river outing of the St. Louis Socialists Sunday in the groves of Montesano. Tossed among nearly six thousand hands these bags became symbolic of the spirit of brotherhood that animated the day. Practical socialism was shown in the tremendous hampers of food upon which the social picnickers feasted royally.

These evidences of socialism were emphasized by the bean guessing contest, out of the profits of which the propaganda of the faith will be proclaimed for another year in printer's ink and by word of mouth. Every loyal Socialist took a chance of providing his wife, daughter or sweetheart with a sewing machine and a copy of "The Jungle."

Again the symbolic bean of plenty took the lead, an unknown number of them swinging in a glass guessing jar over the displayed books of thinkers which reflected the discussions among neighborly groups at tables under the trees.

Books Close at Hand.

"Poverty," by Robert Hunter, elbowed the "Mass and Class" of Ghant; "The Pinkerton Labor Spy," by Morris Friedman, lay beside Max Hegel's "Social Democracy;" "The Rights of Man" and "The Age of Reason" jostled "What Is Capital?" Nordau, Fulda, Karl Kautsky, Gorky, Ingersoll, Tolstoy and other giant thunderers of the community of man were ready at hand.

That very few of these works were sold seemed to imply that most of them had been read by the 6000 Socialists who forgot their city cares in the woods. Throngs of them eyed the array of doctrine familiarly. Energetic nods or negative signs expressed their accord or disapproval of the utterances of these masters.

A Socialist crowned with snow-white hair like Mark Twain's made a comment that betrayed the practical socialism of this one day's outing.

"Yes, I have read all of them," said he. "I expect nearly everyone on the grounds can say as much, but it is a good thing to have them spread out here. These books recall the teachings that have assembled us all here for a brotherly good time."

"Look here, you and I must certainly quarrel, Comrade Smith, if you don't come over and dip into the dinner," said another hearty Socialist with a big family. "Come on now, we brought more than enough for the family just on purpose to catch some lone bachelor like you."

Comrade Smith was immediately impressed and marched away to the table where he was made welcome by the shouts of his captors.

Bean Bag Battle Fast.

"Comrade" was a name to conjure with at the outing. Every stranger received the "hail, well met" salutation. After that friendly word the stranger felt at home. Perhaps he found himself in a bean bag game with several pretty Socialist misses hurling their beans at him with a joy that became infectious. The bean game started at noon, when the steamer City of Providence landed the first convoy of 3000 at the park. At 1 o'clock it was duck or get a bean bag in the neck. At 2 o'clock the air was alive with bean bags.

The battle of the beans was succeeded by a speech. From a small wooden rostrum in the deeper shade of the forest, Arthur Morrow Lewis, a national figure of the Socialist party, talked to 2000 persons who were seated upon the grass about the speaker. Mr. Lewis related some of his personal observations in the mining regions of the Rockies, leading up to the war between the Western Federation of miners and mine owners and ending in the trial of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone at Boise, Idaho.

The speaker was interrupted several times by intoxicated persons on the outskirts of the crowd. These disturbers were compelled to leave the vicinity. At 4 o'clock, when the City of Providence returned from the city with another 2000 excursionists, the one disagreeable feature of the day happened. Return tickets of the first boat load of Socialists were only good at that hour.

Captain Made a Speech.

When the siren of the steamer was heard, hundreds of the excursionists gathered on the river bank to take passage back to the city. Capt. Thorwegen, commanding the Providence, prevented people from leaving or boarding the craft, while he harangued the crowd on the shore about preserving order. This delay brought other persons from the park until 5000 persons were massed in a narrow declivity running from the high bank down to the gang plank which spanned a swift current.

After the passengers had disembarked the captain held the waiting crowd a few minutes longer. Those in the rear could not hear his voice and pushed those in front in the hope of getting out of the broiling sun.

In the front rank on the gang plank were J. A. Hoehn, editor of Labor, and Mr. Brandt, who ran twice on the Socialist ticket for Mayor.

When the crowd surged forward under impetus from those in the rear, about a dozen short yellow billys appeared in the hands of a squad of men on the boat. No one appeared to know who they were. But the clubs were used upon those in front.

Several persons were injured, among them two women who fainted from the crush. The billys were used only a few times until the crowd began streaming on the steamer deck. August Bader of 2336 South Ninth street and Wenzeslaus Sedlak of 5— Alaska avenue were struck on the heads with the clubs. Dr. A. Kean of 1105 North Eleventh street, who was a passenger, treated the two men on the boat. The scrimmage was so brief that it partook of nothing of the volume of a riot.

TROUBLE BLAMED ON COMPANY

Excursion Committte Secretry Says Outsiders Caused Disturbance.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 8, 1907.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Monday morning papers make statements regarding a clash at Montesano Park between passengers of the City of Providence and Jefferson County deputy sheriffs, so at variance with the facts that it is well for people who value life and limb and who patronize river excursions to know the facts.

The steamer City of Providence has been used by the Socialists of St. Louis and vicinity for their annual river excursion for the last eight years. I have served as secretary-treasurer of the party committees in charge at each succeeding event since 1902, yesterday making the sixth time that I served the committee in this capacity. I remained on the boat the entire day on each trip and know what took place.

Mr. Thorwegen, captain of the steamer, each year repeatedly complimented the committee on the absence of any semblance of rowdyism in our crowds. And it's compliment was paid us last year again, although the crowds had grown so large that instead of merely engaging the boat for one trip, our committee engaged the boat for three round trips. Patrons felt secure from rowdyism on our excursion day, and each year the committee was greeted by more and more happy faces of excursionists who anticipated a day of recreation and pleasure unmarred by disturbance. At night the returning excursionists, smiling and serene, irrespective of weather conditions, would assure us, "We'll go down with you again next year."

Different This Year.

But this year these same excursionists bitterly denounced the boat management, and hundreds of mothers of families vowed that it would be their last river excursion. What caused this sudden revulsion? They were, as usual, the same class of people, working people, including all classes of artisans and a sprinkling of business and professional men. The committee did its routine work as usual. This is limited to the ticket sales, the boat retaining all other privileges, including gambling.

Why then this bitterness of the formerly contented and happy excursionists? My answer to this is the recent acquisition by the boat of gambling facilities with their retinue of those who follow that occupation. It was by people of this character that the assault was made at the foot of Olive street.

Two men, one of them a giant of brute strength, began their fight in among the women and children and knocked eight or ten men down with chairs and fists. The arrest of one was effected, while the other was spirited away. To my surprise I found, after assuring myself that one had escaped, that the one in custody of the officer had been set free. So the friends of the boat got away. Repeated rushes were made at the writer, who was known to have considerable money and who was some distance away from where the attack began.

No Protection From Sun.

The assault by the deputies at Montesano landing was the work of farmer boys who had been deputized only a few minutes before the second landing of the boat, at which the brutal assault took place. The morning papers are wrong in saying that the oncoming crowd tried to board the boat before the landing of the second boat load. Every passenger desiring to land had left the boat, and for some unexplained reason the crowd was kept waiting for five minutes in the broiling sun on the bleak, unshaded bank for no apparent cause. Women were fainting, and their relatives, in their efforts to give them fresh air, forced forward. Thus the first in the crowd became the victims of the brutal and senseless clubbing of sheriffs who had never seen over a hundred people together before in one place.

The Federal government will do well to enlarge its sphere of inspection to include the condition of the landings. Absolutely no facilities exist at the Montesano landing for the safe landing of two or three thousand people, and this is as much to the safety of life of travelers on vessels as the life preservers or the fire protection on the boat itself.

My recommendation will be for the discontinuance by our committee of river excursions until these defects are remedied, and even then only on condition that we have entire control of the boat, thus enabling us to exclude criminal classes which now infest the boats, and also to abolish the slot and other gambling devices during the use of the boat by our patrons.

Secretary-Treasurer, River Excursion Committee, Socialist Party.

HUNTING FOR CLUES IN DEATH PLOT MYSTERY

Pistol Guard Filed Down After Hours of Work to Make Machine Perfect.

other. The nickel barrels are three inches long, the entire weapon, with the handle, having been about five inches. The handle was so completely burned away that it cannot be told whether it was of wood or bone.

The single trigger, which serves for both barrels, is of the sort which, when pulled back, remains cocked. The pistol contains two empty 38-caliber shells, both bearing a nick, apparently from hammering, on the rim.

Fine Wire Used.

To the trigger was fastened a fine wire, which held it by a firm loop. This wire passed on through eyelets attached to the under side of the chest lid, the other end being attached near the edge of the lid.

The most remarkable thing about the pistol appeared on close scrutiny. The cold steel trigger guard, which was designed to prevent the weapon from being fired except by direct pressure from in front, has been filed away with great pains. Care was necessary in the work of filing to avoid impairing the trigger spring. Hours of the most diligent and delicate toil must have been spent in this filing.

With this guard out of the way, it was possible for the trigger to be pulled by a wire, as was done.

The funeral of August Genetti, who died last Thursday, three days after the explosion at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, was held Sunday at SS. Peter and Paul's Church, Collinsville. Father Degenhardt officiated, and the Coal Miners' Union, Knights of Columbus, Catholic Knights of America and Pocahontas Fishing Club were represented among the pallbearers. Fifteen hundred persons attended. Kate Genetti was too ill to be present.

A large number of persons called on Joseph Genetti in the Jail Sunday.

INDIAN WOMAN HOLDS MAN AS SHE STABS HIM

Half-Breed Cherokee Avenges Herself for Many Beatings, She Says.

IS WIFE OF ANOTHER

"But I Still Love Will," She Says, of Victim in the Hospital.

Mrs. Lily Lark, a half-breed Cherokee, held William Kinney against the wall of Fred Huber's saloon, 801 Brooklyn street, with her left hand while she plunged a knife into his abdomen with her right hand.

For four years Mrs. Lark and Kinney had lived together. Frequently, she says, he struck her and she took his abuse meekly. When she went to Huber's and demanded that he go with her to their home, 826 Brooklyn street, he slapped her on the neck, she says. All the fury of her Indian nature was aroused and she sought revenge for all past abuses with a quick stroke of her knife.

Now she is a prisoner at the North Market Street Station, awaiting the outcome of Kinney's injuries. Physicians at the City Hospital say they are serious. Mrs. Lark is not worried about that.

"Not Hurt Bad."

"He's not hurt bad," she said Monday. "He turned over in bed when they brought me to the hospital. If he was hurt bad, he couldn't turn over.

"But whether he gets well or not, it's all off between us. He'll never strike me any more. I told him so before I stuck my little knife in him.

"I still love him," she added. "He's the only man I ever loved. I never loved my husband, and I often told him so."

The stabbing of Kinney is the tragic climax to the strange life story of Mrs. Lark. Her father was a full-blooded Cherokee Indian. She was born on the Cherokee reservation, near Asheville, N. C.

Her father's name was Tuscumlum. That was the only name he had among the Indians, she says, but he afterward acquired the added name of "Nickie" from the white persons in North Carolina, for whom he acted as interpreter.

Her mother, Mrs. Lark says, was a French woman, reared in England, who came to North Carolina as an immigrant. Mrs. Lark's maiden name was Lillie Tuscumlum and she went to school for a time at Carlisle, Pa.

When she was about 17 years old her parents gave her $2500, she said, and she started out for herself in the world. She came to St. Louis about twelve years ago and later married Robert Lark. When her money ran out she went to work as a janitress and is still employed in that capacity in the Liggett Building.

About four years ago she separated from Lark and later took up with Kinney. She never applied for a divorce and neither did Lark, according to her story.

Mrs. Lark is 31 years old. She looks her Indian ancestry. Her hair is jet black and her complexion a pure olive. her eyes are large and black and lustrous and they flashed as she told how she "stood Will up against the wall and stuck the knife into him."

She is of medium height and of athletic physique. When she smiles she displays two even rows of glistening, pearly teeth, with one upper tooth gold-capped. She betrays not the slightest emotion when discussing the stabbing. Her voice is pleasing and her expression at times attractive.

Her parents are now dead, she says, but she has a brother in Washington who is a Government interpreter.

7 INDICTMENTS AGAINST LEWIS CHARGE FRAUD

Federal Grand Jury Acts Against Head of the People's Bank.

CASHIER ALSO NAMED

Accused Men Appear and Give Bail—Cases Not Transferred.

Seven new indictments against Edward G. Lewis, president of the People's United States Bank and the Lewis Publishing Co., were made public Monday. The indictments were returned by the Federal grand jury Saturday, but were kept secret until Lewis and other defendants were notified to appear to give bond.

In one indictment Lewis and Francis V. Putnam, cashier of the bank, and treasurer of the publishing company, are charged with using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud the stockholders of the bank.

It is charged in the indictment that while the bank was in the hands of a receiver, Lewis and Putnam mailed "glittering" prospectuses to the stockholders, asking them to send in their bank stock and receive in return for it stock of the publishing company and the personal notes of Lewis. The Government charges that by this means the whole number of stockholders were defrauded out of $1,500,000.

Lewis and Putnam gave bond on this indictment in the sum of $3000 each.

A new indictment was also returned against Lewis, Frank J. Cabot and William M. Miller, charging a conspiracy to defraud the Government on postage rates on the mailing of the Lewis publication. This indictment was made necessary by technical errors in one returned by a previous grand jury.

Four indictments were returned against Lewis alone, charging him with a scheme to defraud through the People's United States Bank. On one of these indictments he gave a $3000 bond, and on the other three his personal recognizance was accepted.

The bonds were signed by L. B. Tebbetts, Nathan Frank, Lon V. Stephens, James F. Coyle and Jackson Johnson.

Judge Trieber, after the grand jury report was made public, denied the motion filed by Lewis' attorneys last week, asking that the Lewis cases be transferred from the District to the Circuit Court.

MOTHERS AND BABIES LEAVE CITY'S HEAT FOR EXCURSION

First Fresh Air Excursion Takes 1500 Persons on River Trip.

The first Fresh Air Mission river excursion on the City of Providence left the Locust street wharf at 9:30 a. m. Monday, with every promise for a happy day for the 1500 women and children who took advantage of the chance to spend a holiday away from the heat of the city.

Bethesda Home sent a party of 18 grown people, including some of the aged and the incurable, and each able-bodied woman carried a baby from the foundling or orphan department in her arms.

In order and in time to the music of the band on the boat, 75 orphan children, neatly dressed in uniform clothing, marched down the wharf to the boat. These children were from the German Protestant Home on the St. Charles Rock road.

Trained nurses and two physicians accompanied the excursionists, and any case of illness or need of medical attendance is investigated and relief provided.

Walter Diehn, president of the Fresh Air Mission, and Louis C. Spiering, secretary, were in personal charge of the trip, and were assisted by other officers and directors, including Dr. Ernest Saxl, Mrs. Anna G. Eberhard and Mrs. Louis Pechmann.

The river excursions will be continued weekly during the summer. It is estimated that it costs 10 cents each for a mother and her children to be given the outing. Expenses are paid from the Fresh Air Mission free-will funds.

T. A. M.'S TAKE A TROLLEY RIDE AND SEE THE TOWN

Theater Employes Throughout the Country Will Be Here a Week.

The opening session of the annual convention of the Theatrical Mechanical Association, attended by 200 delegates from many states and from Canada, was held Monday morning at the Eagles' hall, 2724 Pine street. The association consists of stage employes, scene-painters, scene-shifters, etc.

It has been arranged for the convention to occupy the entire week and for this reason not much business was transacted at the opening session. The convention adjourned at noon and the delegates were given a trolley ride to Shaw's Garden. Tonight they will visit West End Heights.

A resolution was offered at Monday's session to change the name of the order to the Theatrical Mutual Aid Association. This will be voted on later in the week.

There are 61 lodges of the association throughout the country. Tony Denier, the original "Humpty Dumpty," is one of the delegates. Leo Springer and George King are in charge of the entertainment of the visitors.

PURE MILK AGAIN STAYS DEATH'S HAND

Little Julia Hirt Was Near the End When Her Parents Heard of the Pure Milk Fund Which Saved Her.

THROUGH the narrow hall that bisects the building, across the cobble paved court, then up the stairs, past four open kitchen doors, where the odors of four noonday dinners greet you, up another flight of stairs, and still another, past more doors—and here we are: This door admits us to the home of Mrs. A. Hirt. There in the buggy is little 6-months-old Julia. She has been very ill—see how the little bones almost protrude through the skin.

Hear what her mother says:

"A month or so ago Julia commenced getting sick and weak. We couldn't tell what was the matter with her, or where the pain was. We didn't feel like calling a doctor till it was absolutely necessary, so just kept trying to doctor her ourselves. I was feeding her on dairy milk, but she didn't like it, and was just as hungry when she had finished eating as she was when she commenced.

"She kept getting thinner all the time, and she had such a terrible fever. I gave her oat meal, and everything the neighbors told me to, but still she got thinner. Her eyes got dull, and she would lie in her buggy all day without seeming to see or notice anything at all, and scarcely breathing.

"My little boy died last summer, and I was sure I was going to lose my baby girl. I was nearly frantic—walking the floor with her all night and trying to do my work in the daytime. I was just about worn out myself, and my husband said we simply must have a doctor, if we starved for it.

"I took her to a doctor about ten days ago. He said the poor little dear was starving to death on the grocery milk, and that I would have to give her pure, clean, nourishing milk immediately if I would keep her. He gave me an order on the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund and told me not to give her anything but that milk until he told me I might.

"I just wish you could have seen her the first time I gave her the milk. She put the bottle away from her when I tried to give it to her, like she had been doing the dairy milk. But I finally coaxed her to taste it and you should have seen her astonishment. She grabbed that bottle and commenced drinking that milk so fast she nearly choked, and cried when it was all gone. Two hours later, when she saw me preparing the bottle, she commenced to goo, and now jumps up and down and holds out her arms whenever she sees the bottle. She certainly does love that pure, good milk, and I don't blame her, for see how fast it is making her well and strong. I don't see what we poor folks would do these hot days without the Pure Milk Fund. It is saving more lives every day than any other two charities put together, I am sure."

Isn't it worth a little bit of trouble on your part, to save these helpless, innocent little lives? The pure milk has cured every baby to whom it has been given. Isn't that a sweeping statement? But it is a true one, and one which every mother who has used it will verify.

What would become of all these babies without the Pure Milk Fund? What did become of them before its existence? They died, carried off by the hundreds, by starvation and intense heat. Is there any nobler, worthier work than saving the lives of the helpless, innocent little creatures, who are absolutely dependent upon our goodness of heart for their existence? Can you ask any better reward than the contentment and freedom from the terrible pain of the babies and the thanks and gratitude of the burden-laden mothers? Send us what you can—help us save the lives of St. Louis' future men and women. Let us give them a fair start, build up for them a good, strong constitution, that they may grow up a generation of strong men and healthy women.

GEORGE WILLIAMS' TRIAL IS RESUMED

Attorney Gernez Says Defense Will Prove Baker Didn't See Lee Killian Shot.

After a delay of 30 days, caused by the disappearance of Joseph Baker, one of the State's important witnesses, the trial of former Detective George Williams for the murder of Lee Killian, also a former detective, was resumed before Judge Sale Monday morning.

The impaneling of a jury will probably not be completed before Tuesday. Former Judge Orrick Bishop appeared for the first time as one of the defendant's attorneys. Attorney Gernez, also representing Williams, says the defense will be able to show that Baker was not an eye-witness to the shooting.

When he returned to St. Louis, after being arrested in Detroit, Baker declared that he had been induced to go away by Attorney Gernez. As a result Mr. Gernez was cited to appear before Judge Sale on the charge of contempt, which is still pending.

Killian was killed by Williams in McGrath & McMahon's saloon, Feb. 27 last.

CALLED ON WIDOW TO END HIS LIFE

At the home of his former sweetheart in East St. Louis, Louis Hawkins, an actor in the Chester Comedy Company, swallowed carbolic acid Sunday night and died within an hour. His mother at Ashley, Mo., has been notified.

Hawkins was 23 years old and one year ago returned from three years' service in the army. When he left Ashley for the army he was engaged to be married to Miss Grace Etschman, his childhood companion and sweetheart.

During his army service Miss Etschman was married to a man of the name of Robinson, and is now a widow of one month.

Mrs. Robinson is now 22 years old and lives with her mother, Mrs. S. Etschman, at 704 North Twenty-sixth street, East St. Louis. After her husband's death Mrs. Robinson visited Hawkins' mother at Ashley two weeks ago and there met Louis Hawkins for the first time since he left for the army.

The old love was rekindled and after a week's visit Mrs. Robinson returned to her mother's home in East St. Louis. Hawkins joined a theatrical company and started on his circuit. Sunday his company passed through East St. Louis and he stopped for a visit with Mrs. Robinson.

When he arrived at Mrs. Etschman's home he was in a jovial mood, but members of the family say it was plain that he had been drinking. He intended to catch a night train, but Mrs. Etschman insisted that he stay all night. At 10 p. m. preparations were made for retiring and Hawkins went to the room prepared for him.

A few minutes later Mrs. Robinson went to his room to take a pitcher of water. As she entered the door she saw Hawkins place a vial to his mouth and drain the contents. She says he put the stopper in the bottle, placed the bottle on a dresser and lay down on the bed. Not a word was spoken and no reason was given for his act, Mrs. Robinson says.

HEAT-CRAZED MAN BARRICADES HOME

Leaves Plow, Drives Out Family, Burns Furniture and Resists Siege by Neighbors.

When plowing in his field three miles north of Edwardsville Monday, Ben Spindler, a farmer, was driven mad by the heat. He went to his house, forced his wife and children to leave, carried the furniture and clothes out and burned them, and then barricaded himself in the house.

His wife and neighbors, who tried to approach him, were menaced and told not to molest him. A call for help was sent to Edwardsville. An effort will be made to overpower Spindler and capture him.

Gumberts' $200 Bond is Forfeited.

Joseph Marshall of Wellston was fined $100 for selling liquor on Sunday.

A picturesque wedding took place Sunday afternoon at the Chain of Rocks, when Miss Anna Belle Fry and Mr. Hosken B. Mustain were married. The bride's parents have a suburban home at this river point, and the large grounds full of flowers at this season were utilized for the wedding ceremony and merry-making which followed.

The service was read at 4 o'clock, the bride and bridegroom standing beneath an arch of young oak boughs, interwined with roses and sweet peas, this being arranged on the lawn.

Rev. Dr. G. W. Nollner performed the ceremony and Miss Anna May Nollner played the wedding march, the piano being placed on a side porch. Little Miss Irene Fry was her sister's only attendant, serving as ring bearer and flower girl.

The bride wore a dainty lingerie gown of finest French mull, inserted with real Valenciennes lace. Her tulle veil was caught to the hair with graceful loopings of the tulle and she carried a shower of white roses and maidenhair fern. The flower girl wore a frock of fine white batiste and lace, with much hand work, and carried a large shower bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Dinner to a large number of guests was served al fresco, after which the bride and bridegroom departed for a honeymoon journey, at the conclusion of which they will go to their home in North St. Louis.

BIG MAIN BURSTS; STREET CAVES IN

Lake Formed at Pennsylvania Avenue and Winnebago Street—Fine Wading for Boys.

The bursting of a water main caused a portion of Pennsylvania avenue at the southwest corner of Winnebago street, to cave in early Monday. After working three hours, employes of the city checked the flow at 5 a. m.

The water backed into a vacant lot, forming a pond 75 feet square, a fine wading place for the boys of the neighborhood. The only building near the break is the Froebel School, across the street. It was not damaged.

The depression in the street is 15 feet square and 10 feet deep. It will cost the city $500 to repair it.

NO MORE FLIRTING TO BE ALLOWED AMONG SOLDIERS

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 8.—"Non coms" and enlisted men of the second battalion of the Twelfth Infantry, with the headquarters band, stationed on Governor's Island, are almost on the point of mutiny, on account of the rigorous enforcement of some old regulations barring visitors, especially women, from the post.

The trouble, according to the officers, is that there have been so many women on the island of late their presence interfered with the duties of the men. Flirting has become so prevalent at Fort Jay, the military name of the reservation, that it had to be stopped or discipline thrown to the winds.

On Sundays and evenings about dress parade time a crowd of young women and girls, all, of course, sisters and cousins of the soldiers, used to fill the steamer to the post and then disperse in quest of their particular cousins and brothers in uniform. And oh, how they did flirt! There was only one explanation—the sisters flirted with their brother's best friends and the cousins with their cousin's best friends.

New orders are posted that only on the following conditions are visitors to be allowed on the island:

"1. Visitors to officers and their families.

"2. Persons having official business with officers of the Department of the East on the island.

"3. Persons having particular business with officers.

"4. Persons wishing to call on officers or persons living with officers' families."

Cool and Inspiring

You'll think of icebergs—

—And of shady arbors, clustered with luscious fruit—

—With the first sip of Vril.

Nothing so exactly "touches the spot"—

—Meets the demand of parched throat and weary palate.

For Vril—well, it is Vril.

And Vril, in its purity and goodness, its full fruit flavor exquisitely refined, is simply unlike any other drink.

Exhilarating, comforting, nourishing.

Try a Vril-phosphate, Vril-soda, Vril-flip, Vril-ade or Vril-sundae. The fountain man makes 'em.

OPERATORS TO WAIT ONE WEEK BEFORE QUITTING

Stormy Meeting Held at Chicago When Decision Is Made.

MEN ARE INDIGNANT

Assert They Will Not Postpone Action After Next Monday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 8.— The strike scheduled to take place today in the offices of the Postal and Western Union Telegraph here has been postponed for one week at the request of National President S. J. Small, who wired from San Francisco asking for such action by the local union.

When E. M. Moore, chairman of the local executive board, asked that the strike be postponed for one week, the wildest demonstration took place. Radical members almoist succeeded in stampeding the meeting wilth cat calls of "cold feet," cowards" and "weak ones," but when the action was explained to the rank and file postponement carried. There was not a member of the national executive board present who would admit he had courage enough to appear before the next meeting and ask that a further postponement be granted.

To Apprise Commissioner.

It is understood Deputy President Konenkamp has signed a document guaranteeing that no strike will be called until Commissioner Neill has full knowledge of it. On the other hand President Clowry has guaranteed the comissioner that no discrimination will be made against any man until he has been apprised of such discrimination.

Commissioner Neill will push his mediation efforts, beginning today. Meetings have been arranged between the commissioner and T. P. Cook, representing the Western Union and W. I. Capen, representing the Postal company, and with the three members of the international executive board and General Secretary Welsey Russell.

G. Dal Jones, chief telegrapher of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, said the action of Sunday's meeting could not be duplicated.

"There will be no use in trying to drag a settlement through a number of weeks," declared Mr. Jones. "Settlement must be reached this week if at all, and it is my belief Commissioner Neill will be successful. Concessions will have to be granted by both sides, but any settlement that does not allow exercise of union principles had better not be made."

Thinks Union Will Win.

Deputy President Konenkamp said he was hopeful of final victory for the union.

"We have had some disagreeable questions to deal with," he declared, "and we have met them with more or less success. The companies do not like the idea of re-employing an operator whom they have discharged, even though the dismissal was solely on the grounds of too much unionism. It is hard to ask chief operators who have discharged a man to reinstate that man and by doing so acknowledge union power over their action, but it has to be done and when we get through with the present controversy I believe union men will be let alone as long as they do their work according to office rules. When they do not they can expect no help from the union, for we do not propose to allow the union to become the means through which men can violate their obligations to their employers."

Regarding the mediation that will continue this week, neither Secretary Russell nor members of the board would say that will take place. Much will depend on the outcome of the meeting in San Francisco today. Should failure result in President Small's efforts to settle the strike on the coast, it is within his power to direct a strike in Chicago or in any other city without further delay.

BEER BY GALLON AT WEDDING

Two Quarts Served for Each of 300 Guests.

About 150 gallons of beer was drunk at the wedding of Peter Reb and Catherine Federspell Sunday night in a hall at Eighth street and Lafayette avenue, one block from the Soulard Street Station.

Three hundred guests attended. Several uninvited persons, trying to find a crevice in the lid, drank in the hall. The couple obtained Excise Commissioner Mulvihill's permission to serve beer and they were not interfered with by the police.

THE COOLEST SHOPPING PLACE

Our July Clearing Sale Began This Morning

And It Is a Marvelous and Instantaneous Success

CONSIDERING the features of this event, it could not be otherwise. The sale was planned to surpass the wonderful selling record established by our Removal Sale that was inaugurated a year ago today, and extreme measures were adopted to bring about the desired result.

The most astounding offerings are made in every department of the store. Not only have great price concessions been made on all summer goods, but discounts are being given on entire stocks, the same as we did last year during our Removal Sale. For example:

All Linings (with the exception of a couple of restricted brands) are offered at a discount of 20 per cent, and there is nothing more staple.

Our Stocks of Men's and Women's Low Shoes on the first and second floors are offered at discounts ranging up to 25 per cent.

All our high-grade Corsets are offered at 25 to 33 1-3 per cent discount.

All Oriental Rugs are offered at 33 1-3 per cent discount.

Our entire stock of Lace Curtains, Draperies, in fact everything in the Drapery section on fourth floor, is offered at a discount of 20 per cent.

The finest Table Cloths are offered at 33 1-3 per cent discount.

And so on throughout the entire store. Go in the Silk Section, in the Dress Goods Section, on the great fifth floor; in the Lace Section, Jewelry Department, on the third floor; departments of Women's and Misses' Apparel and Millinery; go where you will, you will find the most astounding price reductions and discounts in effect

And we want to emphasize the fact that these discounts and reduced prices will remain in effect the entire month of July. This is not a sale for one day, but for a month. And in addition to these enormous sacrifices, we will offer extra special values from day to day.

This is undoubtedly one of the greatest bargain opportunities the St. Louis public has ever had. Imagine being able to come into this immense establishment and going into any department and buying merchandise of the highest character at such discounts as we quote. We will admit that we will incur a loss during this great discount sale, but July is never a very profitable month, and our resolve is to do a great volume of business in order that our sales may far surpass those of a year ago, and besides, we want to do the unexpected--to give values that will make the whole town "sit up and take notice," and that's what we are doing during this July Clearing Sale.

BISMARCK AS AN EDUCATOR.

As the creator of the modern "blood and iron" method of control in what would otherwise become high civilization, Bismarck was capable of greater candor than any one of his successors in that business.

He defined its method in one of his great war-speeches in the Reichstag, and its method is simplicity itself. It is simply that of letting loose the "Furor Teutonicus," or "Berserkerwuth," at a political crisis. With the Berserkerwuth let loose as an epidemic, no other crisis can exist except the one it creates. Nothing can be seen except red. All the other colors and shades of color disappear.

When the principal warships of the American Navy are massed in the Pacific this year, with no crisis actually in sight except that which may be created by the attempt to stop this Government at home, the Berserkerwuth and the Furor Teutonicus are still held ready to be let loose when it may seem advisable to "start something" for next year.

The little Bismarcks of the present are not likely to learn anything their master in the art of supplanting civilization with the "Teutonic fury" and the "Berserker craze," did not know before them. The shortest way to learn the meaning of their experiments in barbarism is simply to learn Bismarck.

St. Louis leads in naval enlistments. We mean to do all we can to save the Californians.

THE RED MAN OF COURAGE.

Geronimo, the Apache, is reported to have attempted escape from the reservation upon which he is held captive at Fort Sill, O. T. He was riding toward Mexico when he was overtaken some miles from the fort.

Such an attempt at his age—he is anywhere from 80 to 125—is characteristic of Geronimo. The old fellow has been bad, but can't has never been in his lexicon. Some time ago there was published a book in which the chief told, through an interpreter, the simple story of his life. Critics who have read that book, especially between the lines, agree that there is not in all fiction anything finer for downright courage. Geronimo was made of stern stuff. As a young warrior he sometimes invaded Mexico with one or two companions, terrorizing our neighbors and occasioning great activity among their troops. In a country where the horned toad gasps for water and the coyote mourns for flesh, danger was to Geronimo both meat and drink. His straightforward story of what he did and tried to do leaves the reader with a very healthy notion of what he didn't know about fear.

Perhaps Geronimo is the man to start the ascensions for us in the St. Louis Aero Club.

The man who is killed on a 2-cent fare will be just as dead as if he had paid 3 cents.

OFFICIAL NATURE STORIES.

The evidence that as Secretary of Agriculture, Hon. James Wilson is developing the nature-faking habit, does not consist merely of his official method of accounting for the high price of trust beef by the mathematics of rat production. This may be considered as circumstantial, but the direct evidence is more recent and more convincing.

In his "Year Book" just issued and prefaced by a long paper addressed over his signature "To the President," he drops the subject of rats for the time being and takes up birds, his object being to show that a large number of Americans who cannot make millions by organizing meat trusts or other trusts, may make money by catching song birds, caging them and shipping them for sale at large profits.

After introducing the putative prospects of these large profits as a motive for interest in nature and also for catching song birds on the nest, he introduces a number of anecdotes of birds in captivity, including a story that captive weaver birds, "if supplied with worsted or other suitable material, will weave this in and out of the bars of their cages and make neat and comfy nests examples of their handiwork."

Even while the White House ukase is being enforced against unofficial nature-fakers who attribute human habits to the lower animals, Secretary Wilson begins circulating officially this story that foreign weaver-birds as soon as imported into the United States, may begin to manufacture Dingley woolens, which he represents as "neat and compact." Perhaps they are. Perhaps, however, they are like other Dingley woolens, protected by a tax of from fifty cents on the dollar up. Perhaps after they are wet even by a drizzling rain, they show what "neatness and compactness" mean from the Dingley standpoint.

Regardless of that point, Hon. James Wilson is certainly attributing human habits to the lower animals in this case. If this is not nature-faking, what is?

The Kaiser says that Europeans are foolish in allowing the Japanese to copy their methods and learn their secrets. Let's see; wasn't there a story of German officers instructing the Japanese in military tactics?

THE RIGHT SORT OF 'PARTISANSHIP."

Acting on the theory that "the party in power is bound to cleanse itself," partisans in Stone County, Missouri, has let in the light on the "Courthouse ring" and given political grafting a setback from which it is not likely soon to recover in Stone County.

As a beginning and an example, this publicity, with its result in the restoration of law, is worth at least as much to the future of the country as any work of the same kind which has been done in any large city of the United States. During the period of lobby control of politics, with corporation lobbyists as county "bosses," the "Courthouse ring" became an established institution, working corruption not only for politics, but for business and social life.

Few counties in Missouri, or any other State, wholly escaped this demoralizing influence. The embezzlement of county funds shown to have been systematic in Stone County, is a comparatively trivial detail of the general system of grafting and dishonesty which corporation bossism and lobby control made habitual in whatever party it found dominant and ready for its corrupt influences.

The reform which begins at the County Courthouse can do more for the United States and for civilization than any reform which begins at Washington. When the party in power actually begins to "cleanse itself" at the County Courthouse, it will cleanse the State capitals and the national capital also.

This sort of partisanship, this sense of partisan responsibility has no other limit to its power for usefulness than its own earnestness in effort to show that honest partisanship means independent American manhood, controlled not by party bosses, but by the conscience of self-governing citizenship.

Judge Marion Harland declares that it should be contrary to law everywhere for a girl of 16 and a boy of 19 to marry. The Judge is right. How can the children pay their way at present prices of living?

"THE ELKINS LAW."

As a promoter of irresponsibility, Stephen B. Elkins began in the Southwest when it was being exploited by land rings, star-route rings and rings of all kinds. His training and his associations with others educated in the same school made him a reputed millionaire, a United States Senator and the author of the "Elkins law," the operation of which is objected to by the President of Princeton University on the ground that it is framed to protect dishonesty from the ordinary operation of law under which the penalty for fraud is imprisonment. He thinks that the operation of every such law is to shield fraudulency from accountability.

When such men as President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton, thus recognize their own responsibility and meet it squarely, they insure a just, peaceable and progressive solution of whatever problems the country has to solve. It is not merely the fraudulency of the country, but its honesty that must come to account for results. When honesty and intelligence do actually show themselves controlled by a full sense of responsibility, man by man for results, there will be small trouble in dealing with fraudulency.

The final question of accountability is of the account honesty is to give of itself and of the method most effective in compelling it to feel that it is accountable and bound to account.

Why can't this grafted country get some immigration from Iceland, where there have been but two thefts in 1000 years? But is there anything in Iceland worth stealing?

THAT INTERSTATE CONCESSION.

It begins to appear that the railroads linked together in the Western Passenger Association are not prompted by purely benevolent motives in their sudden concession which makes the 2-cent-fare laws operative in interstate travel. For a time this seemed to be a case of broad-minded public spirit. But no.

When the 2-cent-fare law went into effect in Nebraska, two or three months ago, the railroad folk up there said, as they have said more recently in Missouri, that they would delay legal proceedings until time and experience might give some actual results upon which to base contesting litigation.

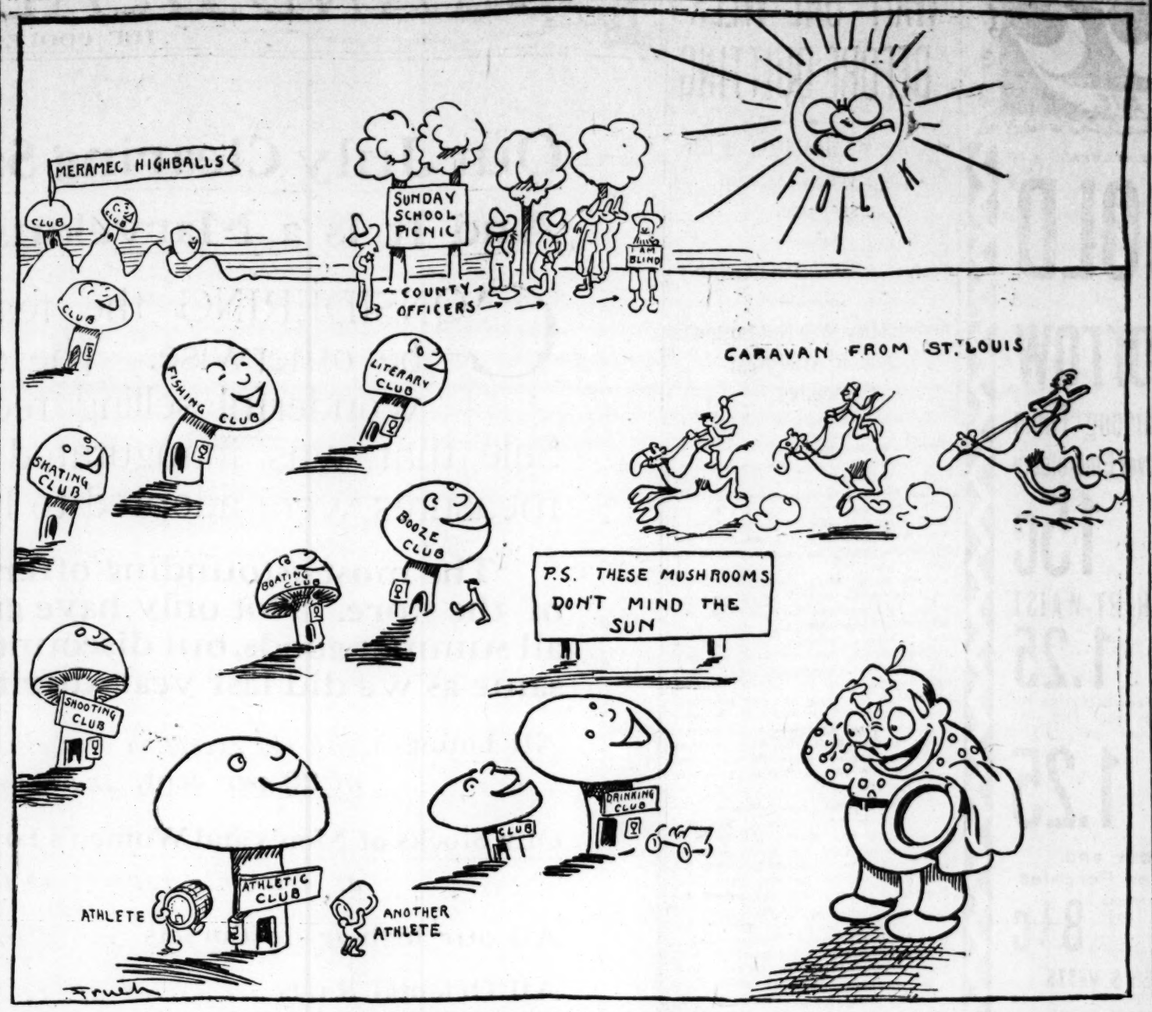

But the waiting promised to be disastrous. The people were quick to learn that, while they could not get the benefit of the 2-cent rate on interstate travel, they could still beat the game in part by buying transportation to the State's boundaries at the low fare, and there buying another ticket to their destination.

Well and good. But the effect of this was to increase the showing of local travel enormously, out of right proportion to the facts. The Nebraska roads were threatened to be hoist with their own petard. Earnings within the State were "booming," and it was evident that, on the face of these returns, there would be no grounds for a contention of "confiscation." What was true in Nebraska was true also i nevery Western State in like case.

The action of the passenger association, therefore, is purely self-defensive, seeking to bring matters to a right balance by preventing these undue swellings of State business.

ANOTHER VERSION.

The sons of Mary are away.
This old town knows them not,
They spend no part of summer day
Where it's so blooming hot.
They're resting where the shore waves run
And cool sea breezes lurk—
But the sons of Martha (I am one)
Are here and hard at work.

The sons of Mary are all fled
From this sun-blistered place,
They never see the sun so red
And blazing in the face.
They're in the North since first the sun
Began to enervate—
But the sons of Martha (I am one)
Are here and losing weight.

For Mary chose the better part,
And Martha chose the worse,
And they unto their sons impart
The blessing and the curse.
That Mary knew what choice to make,
Her sons are plump and cool—
But Martha's sons, for her mistake
Stew each in his own sweat-pool.

THINGS ROCKEFELLER DIDN'T ADMIT.

That Capt. Kidd was all wrong.
That he is enjoying his old age.
That honesty is the best policy.
That he has forgiven Ida Tarbell.

That he was going to Chicago anyway.
That he has lost faith in his lawyers.
That he and Harriman are two of a kind.
That Pittsfield, Mass., is a good hiding place.
That he thinks he has any of our money.
That Mr. Roosevelt ought to have a third term.
That he has finally gotten into our point of view.
That the Baptist preachers haven't stood by him.
That the Jolly Rogers has done the cause any good.
That he is lonesome without a bailiff sticking around.
That he ever saw anything he wanted that he didn't take.
That he thinks his son's Bible class will do the family any good.
That he practiced the square deal before Roosevelt ever dreamed of it.

LOVE ON THE RAILROAD

A Comment Inspired by an Odd Strike. Written for the Post-Dispatch

BY NIXOLA GREELY-SMITH.

NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

STATION employes in South Norwalk, Conn., have gone on strike because of the unprecedented quantities of rice and confetti scattered in station in the wake of departing June brides. The railway company ordered its men to sweep the rice up, and they promptly went on strike, declaring they were not Chinamen. Orders have been posted forbidding the rice throwing, with the natural effect of increasing the practice.

In this unusual controversy between capital and labor my sympathy is entirely with the workingmen. And I think future brides and grooms of South Norwalk and elsewhere will call the strikers blessed if the senseless custom of rice throwing can be done away with. It is true, of course, that a soul alive to sentiment might prompt the railroad man to look with leniency upon the pranks of bridal parties. But the brides and bridegrooms are such an old story to him that it is natural he should come to regard them as merely a source of trouble and refuse to allow them to add to his working hours. Indeed, it is a wonder to me that all railroad employes are not hardened cynics. They see so much of the eternal sameness of love, and they are, moreover, peculiarly exposed to the confidence of the indiscreet lover. If the bridegroom chooses to rhapsodize on the charms of his bride to the train conductor in the smoking car, that much-enduring individual has to listen, though it makes the seventeenth rhapsody he has heard on one run. The man at the information bureau and all the employes scattered about the station are compelled to answer wearily but politely a hundred times a day as to whether or not they have seen "a young lady in a gray dress and a bunch of violets standing by the flower stand."

Two years ago, on a train between Denver and St. Louis, I observed a very young and peroxide Juno reading letters which she abstracted from a manila paper bag to a patient conductor, and later she read them to me. She was, she told me, a "Parisian Dancer" from Los Angeles, going to Chicago to be married to a jockey. The letters were the love songs of the enamored, and they all wound up in the invariably eccentric fashion, "Yours truly, your passionate lover, Willie." There must have been fifty of them, and the conductor had been obliged to hear every one, without, of course, the interest in the psychology of emotions which made them valuable human documents to me.

When I think of what this man and nearly every man employed by a railroad has suffered from the expansiveness of traveling lovers, I am surprised that the revolt against the June bride parties has been delayed so long. Surely these long-suffering persons should be spared the rice sweeping.

TAME DEER HUNTERS

OUT in the Rocky Mountains lives a man who has fenced in several thousand acres as a private park, where the deer and elk breed and thrive as if in the wild state. They are naturally much tamer than other deer or elk, for during hard winters they are fed.

The proprietor of this almost natural park has grown wealthy by letting hunting privileges to a class that are willing to pay a big price, that they may be photographed in the roles of heroes just after they have killed some innocent deer or elk or bear. They would rather, of course, have the picture show them in the act of killing, but, as it is difficult to get good, clear negatives under such circumstances, they stand as the young hunter making their best pose. The pictures they mail to friends in the hope of winning admiration.

LONGEVITY OF ANTS REMARKABLE

ANTS are really very long lived, considering their minuteness. A naturalist had two queens under observation for ten years, and one of Sir John Lubbock's ant pets lived into her 15th year. Ants are very tenacious of life after severe injury. Following loss of the entire abdomen they sometimes live two weeks, and in one case a headless ant, carefully decapitated by aseptic surgery, lived for 41 days. A carpenter ant after being submerged eight days in distilled water, came to life upon being dried, so that they are practically proof against drowning. They can live long periods without food; in one case the fast lasted nearly nine months.

A Spiritual Suggestion for Today

THE sun of the world, which is pure fire is that from which Nature exists and subsists. The sun of heaven, which is pure love, is that from which life itself, which is love together with wisdom, exists and subsists.

Where Money Would Do Good.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

With but few exceptions the gifts of millionaires are to some city, in the form of a public library, which does not reach the poor and needy at all. People who are in destitute circumstances do not read books; only the rich reap any of the benefit of a donation of this kind. If a million or half-million were given to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Ice Fund, then it would reach those who need it.

SAM NOWLIN,
816 South Sixth street.

Condition of Hamilton Avenue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Permit me to call attention to the awful condition of Hamilton avenue at the crossing of the Suburban tracks. The pavement is now in a condition where it is not only a nuisance to the whole neighborhood and the cause of numerous daily accidents, but it endangers the lives of hundreds of people. The street car tracks are loose and have sunk down in the ground. When they cross the Suburban tracks they are one to four inches below the level of the street. These tracks are loose, and as water accumulates in them it squirts on all passing cars and on the passengers and pedestrians. The noise made by cars at the crossing is like pandemonium. Walls in the neighboring houses have been cracked by the constant jolting. Horses get their feet caught in the tracks and their shoes are torn off. In addition to all of this the water main has burst and the water floods Hamilton avenue. Is the Street Commissioner awake or asleep?

MURPHY.

An Afterthought.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The one day of horror is past, thank heaven! and we may bring our nervous sick up out of the damp, dark cellars, where they were carried to escape the horrible din, back into the light and sunshine of the upper rooms. What does it matter if their pulse runs high and their night a delirious one? It is the glorious Fourth! The alley strewn with broken bottles, with dead and wounded dogs and cats and song birds attest to the fact that the boy hoodlums of the neighborhood "had a royal good time" and were at liberty to indulge their thirst for cruelty to the limit, with nobody to say "nay" to them. Who dares to say America is not the home of the brave and the land of the free, even though death and misery follow in its wake?

TAXPAYER.

Bookwriting and Insanity.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is rather strange if merely writing a book on Spiritualism made Mr. Lane insane. Hundreds of books have been written on this subject with no such result. Overwork has unbalanced many people, and this may easily have been the case with Mr. Lane. In the asylums there are proportionately fewer Spiritualists than professors of any other religion; this is also true of penitentiaries. I do not wonder that a man practicing law and writing a book at the same should be upset mentally, even if there is no hereditary taint. If young men realized what the practice of law means there would not be so many lawyers. The newspapers have no business to fair in the Lane matter. not been quite fair in the Lane matter.

SOCRATES MUNSON.

Open Air Swimming Pool.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A few days ago I read an article in your paper giving the criticism of an Easterner in regard to an open-air swimming pool. Surely nothing could compare to the benefit derived by the masses in indulging in this the truest of all recreation. In all our natatoriums the water is so cool that neither benefit nor pleasure can be obtained from same, and in the open-air pools at our summer gardens the water is so muddy and the crowd attending them so rough and boisterous that it is virtually closed to any of the respectable. An attractive sand beach on the [illegible] Creve Coeur Lake would certainly be appreciated and [illegible] for itself either to the city or to [illegible] owner.

The Jewish Encyclopedia says: "In the Old Testament Abraham presents the type of a simple Bedouin sheick who wanders from place to place in search of pastures for his herds; a kind-hearted, righteous and God-fearing man whom God chose on account of his faithful and righteous character to be the father of a nation peculiarly favored by Him in the possession of the coveted land of Canaan."

PHIL.—A recent writer says: "I have observed a number of people who have blooded stock, using a blanket, which is fastened around the neck with some sort of surcingle. The blanket is of the nature of cheese cloth, or some coarse, thin fabric. I have seen whole herds of cattle protected in this way, as well as horses. In first-class livery stables, nearly every horse, during the summer, is protected by such a blanket. I presume, from this practice among horse breeders and stock raisers, that there is no other way successfully to protect them from the flies. There are fluids recommended with which to sprinkle the cattle, said to keep the flies away, but I have no faith in such fluids. If you wish to try one I should recommend as probably the best a tea made from pennyroyal. Make it quite strong and add to a quart of it 16 drops of carbolic acid. This should be sprayed over the creature with an atomizer, which can be obtained at the drug store, such as is used for perfumery. But, in my judgment, the blanket would be the most practicable thing."

THE "JOHN D." FACE

"What I Want Him to Teach Me Is That Way He's Got of Making His Face Mind What He Tells It." Written for the Post-Dispatch

BY BILLY FORTUNE.

I THINK that me and John D. ought to meet up with each other and run around together for a while. I've got a hunch that we could teach each other some things. Yes, indeedy, we've both got plenty to learn—same as all wise men.

What? No, I don't want to know nothing about how he made his wad. I wouldn't squander my time tryin' to find out. It wouldn't interest me a speck. I'm travelin' light on the Long Trail, and I don't want to be bothered with a pack train. I don't want no more than just what I can bunch up and tuck away in my belt. John D., he's the one of us that needs to learn about how to outfit for the Big Hike—and he's got too near the end now for it to do him any good.

No, it ain't that. What I want him to teach me is that way he's got of makin' his face mind what he tells it, and lookin' tickled to death when all he's got in his hand is a busted flush. I can't do it, not to save my sinful soul. He can.

Oh, sure, I've tried it. I've spent years and years tryin' it. But it's no good. Sure as I start to push out my chips on a bobtail, my eyes 'll commence to water, or my mouth 'll curl up at the edges, or somethin', and then it's all off.

There was the time up at Douglas, last spring, when I started in to drink it all up faster than the man could pour it out, and got pinched. And the next mornin' the marshal told the judge about me ropin' him and tyin' him up to a telegraph post, and trimmin' his whiskers with my jack-knife and a few other playful little things like that, before he could get anybody coaxed to help him.

"What about it, Billy?" says the Judge to me.

Well, of course, I couldn't remember nothin' about it. Most likely it was all true. But a man has to make some kind of a bluff, them times. What I ought to done was to hire a lawyer and let him tell the judge, like John D.'s done up yonder in Chicago: "Now, Judge, just keep your shirt on, and mebbee me and Mr. Fortune will be willin' to make you a proposition to settle this thing."

But I didn't. I just started to bull it through. "He was insultin' my mother, Judge," I says.

"Why, I didn't know your mother was in Wyoming," says the Judge.

"She ain't," says I. "I ain't got any mother. I'm a poor, lone orphan, Judge." And then I had to dig up two months' pay to square it.

But not John D. Notice what John D.'s a-sayin'? "Why, my land!" he says, "it's a plumb eight years since I stole the money, and I ain't been near the place since. How can I be guilty?" And he's makin' lots of 'em think he's most horrible abused.

And did you notice how he acted when the policeman nabbed him, on the sly? "Oh!" says he, "come right on up and set down. Have somethin'? Why, yes, I seen you chasin' me, but I didn't have no idea you was tryin' to catch me. How's all your folks? Dear, dear! I'm sure terrible sorry you had to run yourself so all out of breath. Lay down here in the hammock and let me fan you." And the policeman went away believin' every word of it.

Why, when that old lad gets Down Below, he'll walk straight up to Nick with his hand out and his good, kind eyes a-shinin'.

"Well, well!"—that's what he'll say—"Well, well! If here ain't my old pal! I been lookin' for you all over. Where you been keepin' yourself? How's tricks? Anything doin' in hell?" And then, before you know it, he'll own the whole place.

Gee whiz, but don't I wish I knew how he does it!

"LAYING DOWN" UNDER WRONGS

Reflections on Some Working Girls' Conditions Written for the Post-Dispatch

BY GERTRUDE BARNUM.

"It takes the zeal out of my work,
The pleasure from my play,
To think that I must wash my face
And dress myself each day."

I ONCE knew a girl who always looked as though she felt that way. Her name was Mabel, and she worked in a cotton mill as a "drawer-in," drawing in the myriad fine threads of the weft through the myriad fine threads of the woof of cotton cloth, 11 hours a day, week after week, month after month, year after year. Mabel's parents had been dwarfed in England by the moist, suffocating, lint-laden air, the shrieking noise and the strain of tending speed-up machines in the Lancashire cotton mills; so their daughter had not much of an inheritance and was a tiny girl for her age. She sat hunched up on a high stool, deftly catching up threads with a sort of crochet needle, never lifting her eyes, which constantly strained at her work through huge eyeglasses.

Mabel's diet was mainly bread and tea; she slept with three sisters in a small back room, with one window opening into a tenement house airshaft; and next to this room was that of the father, a drunkard, and the mother, who had tuberculosis. When I met Mabel she always said she was "feeling quite well," but she is dead now.

Like many, many other working girls, though sending out the thought of feeling quite well, Mabel failed to "demonstrate health." Too many working girls enjoy poor health, and choose to commit suicide by means of dangerous factory and home conditions. In crowdeed workshops, where dusty panes of glass shut out air and sunshine, they are imprisoned by day, breathing poisonous fumes or running tremendous risks with unguarded machines. In crowded tenements at night they are imprisoned.

Baths, far from being considered necessities, are rare luxuries. Daily fare consists of unlimited tea and coffee; canned goods, preserved with God knows what ingredients; overripe fruit and vegetables, feather dusted for cleanliness; and green pickles.

These girls seem to know little and care less about factory laws, which entitle them to healthful work places; about tenement and street-cleaning laws, which entitle them to space and fresh air; pure food laws, apparently, are not for them.

If all girls were as stupid as this we should soon change into a Malay or yellow race; but fortunately some girls have waked up to the privilege of staying upon the earth as sturdy Caucasians and enjoying themselves through their full three-score-years-and-ten. Some know that the best way to "demonstrate health" is to dwell and work in environments and conditions which conserve health.

THE MODEL HUSBAND

Zelma Travers Discusses His Protean Quality.

THERE are as many ideas, and very different ones at that, about what an ideal husband ought to be as there are women in the world.

One woman will tell you: "O John is such a dear. He's so very careful with his money; he brings home his sealed pay envelope every Saturday night and never spends more than 50 cents a day."

Another woman will say: "I certainly have the model husband; he's no grouch. Talk about spend—say! If Jimmie and me don't make the coin fly. There's nothing cheap about Jimmie—he's a dead game sport."

So you see the difficulty in finding a regulation model husband. There would be plenty of model husbands in the world if women had the ideal pattern stamped out which her spouse might copy after.

However, though I have never thought much about it before, I will just shut my eyes for a moment and try to picture what in my opinion is an ideal husband.

He is neat, plainly dressed and rather common looking. He has sober habits with honesty and good will shining out of a clear, frank face.

His business occupies half his time; the rest he spends with his wife and children.

He is fond of his home and he is curious to know how it is run.

He insists on his wife sharing fully half of all marital responsibilities and duties by keeping his house in order and his meals prepared for him.

He insists that his wife be acquainted with his exact financial status and that not a cent above what he can afford shall be spent.

You will have noticed that this model husband of mine is a bit of a master. Although she hates to admit it, womankind loves to be mastered.

I am picturing a rather middle-aged man, who, with his wife, long ago left the calm waters of the Honeymoon sea, who has passed through a few storms and stood the weather well. So this husband is no longer sentimental, but is very kind and loving in looking after his wife the best he can that she does not suffer.

There is positively no use in laying down rules for a model husband to a young bride. He would never qualify.

SCIENCE AND THE CAMEL

DID the camel develop his hump because of countless generations of burden-carrying in the deserts? Some scientists say so. The thoroughbred mehari, or saddle camel, of Central Algeria, which carries no burden heavier than a slim Arab dispatch bearer, is losing its hump. Prof. Lombroso, the Italian anthropologist, has identified similar callosities—miniature humps—upon the neck and shoulders of Hottentot and Malagasy porters employed in work more appropriate to the camel.

Where Will Jerry Catch Him?

Here Is a New Problem Which You Will Find Rather Hard to Solve.

POLICEMAN JERRY was looking for a boy known as Hustler. While standing on the corner of Fourth and Pine streets Jerry was told that Hustler was on the corner of Broadway and Olive street, and immediately set out to capture him.

At the same instant that Jerry moved west on Pine street Hustler moved east on Olive street, bound for the corner of Fourth and Pine streets, where he expected to meet Nosey, his chum.

When Jerry reached Broadway and Olive street he was told by Dutch Pete of Hustler's departure, the direction he had taken and his announced destination. Jerry hurried east, hoping to overtake Hustler at Fourth and Pine streets.

When Hustler reached Fourth and Pine he saw no trace of Nosey, and so continued his walk, going west on Pine street, intending to rejoin Dutch Pete at Broadway and Olive. He did not know that he was being pursued, and Dutch Pete did not warn him, but told him if he would go back to Fourth and Pine he would find Nosey.

Now, listen closely: Each side of the block is 300 feet. Jerry is a very shrewd policeman and also a fast walker, his gait being faster by one-third than Hustler's gait. Where will Jerry overtake Hustler?

Economic.

"Madam," said the wanderer, "I was here last year and you gave me an excellent repast for chopping wood half an hour."

The woman remembered the circumstance.

"I would like another such meal," resumed the speaker, "but as a student of economic conditions, must insist on chopping wood for a full hour."

Striking Fame.

"Your last book, madame, had a colossal success."

"I should say so! Every one of my three divorced husbands wanted to remarry me!"

Always Holds to That.

"It's remarkable how often a woman changes her mind."

"O! not always. There's one idea every woman gets that she never changes."

"What's that?"

"The idea that she's pretty."

GIANT COTTONWOOD

ONE of the largest cottonwoods in the West was cut down not long ago in Ray County, Missouri. It measured 65 feet from the ground to the first knot, and made more than 5000 feet of lumber. One of the largest and finest specimens is in the Capital ground at Topeka, says Philip Eastman in the World Today. It was a seedling which started in 1869, when the first wing of the State House was being erected. It was spared from the scythe and in 25 years attained a growth which gave its top a spread of over one hundred feet. This tree was a great favorite with the late senators from Kansas, John J. Ingalls and Preston B. Plumb, and it is as dear to the hearts of the "Jayhawkers" as is the Washington elm to the people of Cambridge, for the Twentieth Kansas regiment of volunteers not only assembled under this tree, but, after making a record in the Philippines, the regiment and its intrepid commander bade farewell under its branches.

The cottonwood endures great extremes of temperature and when the roots can reach a good supply of moisture it successfully withstands severe drouths. It is a fast-growing tree and demands plenty of light. On irrigated lands cottonwoods have been known to attain a diameter of 14 inches in eight years.

Why Baby's Food Disagrees

An unnatural food is almost certain to disagree with baby.

Did you ever hear a well mother, who was nursing her baby, say that baby's food did not agree with him?

Almost never.

Mother's milk is nature's food.

Sanipure Milk is nature's substitute for mother's milk. It contains the same things mother's milk does—in almost the same quantities, is more nearly like mother's milk than any other infant's food.

Cow's milk forms hard, lumpy curds in the baby's stomach—that is why foods mixed with unchanged cow's milk do not agree with baby.

Sanipure Milk is cow's milk with the faults left out. The formula is on every can—show it to your doctor.

TWO duelists were recently taking the early train for Fontainbleau, their place of meeting. "A return trip," said the first duelist to the ticket agent. "Single for me," said the second man quietly. "Aha," blustered the other, "you are afraid you won't come back, are you? As for me, I always take a return." "I never do," said the second man. "I always take my return half from the dead man's pocket."

PLANNING ANOTHER 24-HOUR AUTO RACE

M'ALEER TO SIGN SOME NEW BOX MEN SOON AS POSSIBLE

Hopes to Get at Least Three New Pitchers to Add to Staff Before End of This Week.

GLADE PAINFULLY HURT IN THE GAME SUNDAY

Browns' Entire Twirling Department in Very Bad Condition and Wallace Will be Off Diamond for About Seven Days Longer.

WITHIN the next week Manager McAleer is going to increase the size of his pitching staff anywhere from one to four new men.

Not that he will let any of his twirlers which he now has go, but he is on a still hunt for some star minor leaguers and expects to sign them up at once.

Few, if any, of the fans who saw Washington beat the Browns in the game Sunday afternoon, realized that Glade had been injured and was forced to retire for that reason. Early in the game the pitcher strained his ankle badly sliding for a base and told McAleer he would have to take to the bench.

McAleer asked him if possible to keep going, and Glade tried it for several more innings. He was pitching fine ball, but was suffering intense pain all the time and that eventually proved his undoing.

Glade was the last sound man, except Dineen, he had on his staff. Howell, Powell and Pelty are in bad shape and Morgan is not strong enough by any means to hold up his end, so that end of the team is in bad shape.

Wallace is laid up with a sprained hip and knee and will be out of the game for at least a week.

Altogether the team is in a very crippled condition and McAleer has spent the greater part of the last few days looking up the records of what few players there are that can be bought.

OF course McAleer will not be able to pick up any major league pitching stars this time of the season. A winning pitcher is a team's bread and butter, and Chris Von der Ahe was about the only man who would let bread and butter get away from him in midseason. Unfortunately, Chris has no pitchers to sell right now.

McAleer, however, has had scouts all over the country looking up the "dope" on some prospective stars, and thinks that he has some in line now. Then when Howell, Powell, Pelty and Glade come again, as they are expected to do at any time, the team will be stronger than ever.

AGAIN did the dark-clad Washington Senators relish Jimmy McAleer's 57 varieties of pitchers yesterday, and contest No. 2 was annexed by a score of 12 to 6.

When the Browns scored one in the second inning and another in the fourth, and the Undertakers were unable to solve the mysterious Fred, the fans began to take pity on the visitors and offered words of condolence, especially to the former Brownie, Jim Delehanty, and suggested to "Del" that his team might score one run before the finish of the game provided he would make a good slide.

Delehanty was in the game up to the neck again yesterday, and one of his long flies to left and two pretty singles scored three runs. Jim's work was mostly done with the bat, as he had but two chances in the field, and on one of these he threw low to first and the ball did not stop until it bounced against the pavilion. Del got two hits out of six times up.

Outside of a pretty good outfield and a few good pitchers, the Washingtons possess an inferior Major League club, especially for the American League.

Manager Cantillion deserved much credit when he stole a march on the National League and signed up Otis Clymer and Ganley, who had been placed on the market by Pittsburg.

WITH the acquisition of these two men and in the placing of Hickman in right, Cantillion has a formidable outfield. All are good hitters, fielders and throwers, and with Charley Jones to rely on in case either of these show a slump, Cantillion seems to have laid a foundation for a strong team.

The Senators' infield cannot be considered much as fielders, although all of them can sting the ball pretty hard. Cantillion has signed "Buck" Freeman to play first base next season and he should be an improvement over Anderson at first, as "Jawn" does not seem to be at home on the initial sack.

Case Patten is as good a pitcher as a manager would care to have around, and with a first-class team he would win many more than he does now. Smith and Hughes pitch fair ball now and then.

So far the Senators have faced five of the Browns' pitchers and big Jack Powell is the only man yet to be tackled. Powell's turn comes this afternoon.

The Cardinals were idle yesterday and they will play their second game with the Giants this afternoon.

THIS is what the Pittsburg Dispatch says about McCloskey's new find, whom he secured from La Crosse, Mich:

"It seems that Manager McCloskey picked up no mean ballplayer when he hooked Mr. Konetchy, the young fellow from the Wisconsin League. It develops that the first sacker is not a Greek, but a Polish gentleman. But whatever his nationality he played ball all the time yesterday afternoon. He was very much alive around first base, accepting everything that came his way without a wobble and participating in several double plays. He speared high ones, wide ones and low ones, filling St. Jacob Beckley's shoes in a very acceptable manner. At the bat he was also much in evidence, being credited with a single, a two-bagger and a run.

THAT eternal argument, which probably will last as long as baseball exists, whether the star players of today are as great as the stars of history, and whether there are as many now as there used to be, is enjoying another of its periodical booms, and the question is being hotly contested in several sections of the country. It is not likely the argument ever will be finished, because it is possible to convince neither side—the older generation or the present generation of fanatics. The former is positive the stars who were shining on the diamond when they were young could more than hold their own with those of today. The latter generation is equally positive the players have progressed as rapidly as they claim the game itself has, and that the great players of 20 years ago would be at sea in the modern scientific struggle. Probably the present generation will be arguing the other way 20 years from now. There is something permanent about first impressions and youthful enthusiasm. What man or woman of 50 cannot remember the name of his or her first school boy or girl sweetheart and many of the incidents of that earliest flirtation? How many can remember all the equally ephemeral romances which have interve. . in their lives?

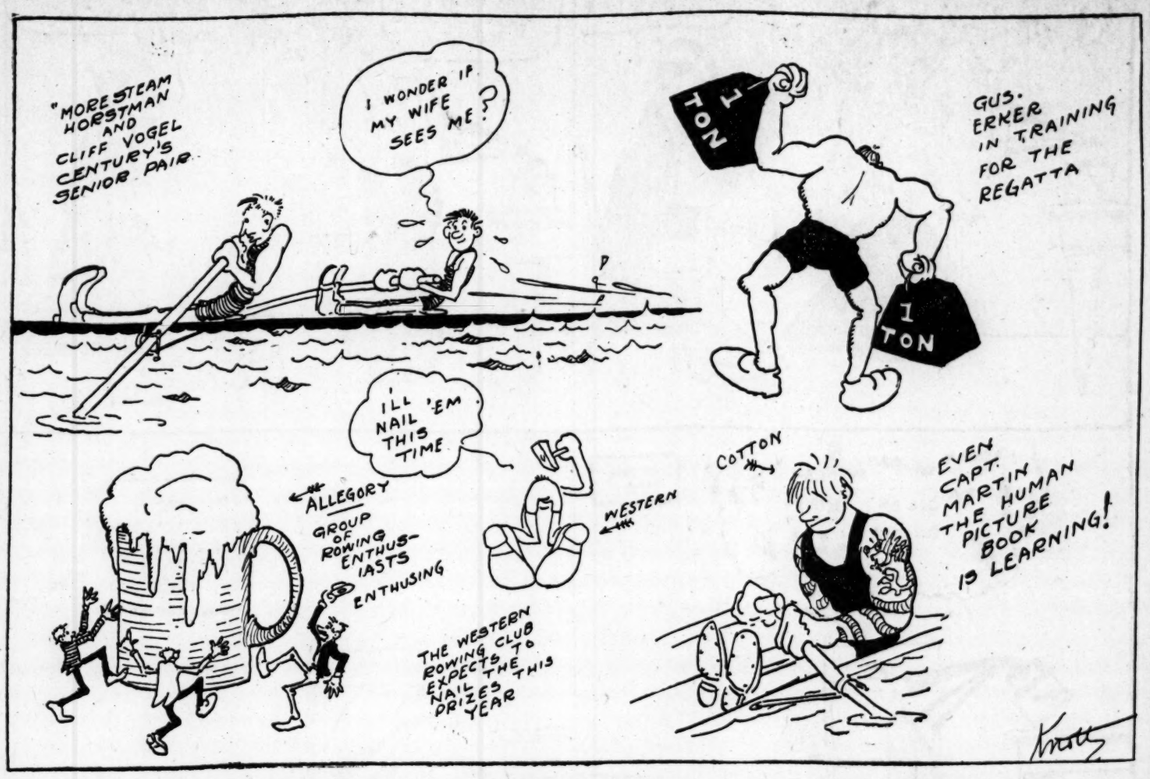

So there are baseball fanatics who can recall and repeat the batting order of the Detroit champions of 1887 or the Chicago champions of the earlier '80s, but who could not give the correct batting order of the Cubs, White Sox, Browns or Tigers of today without consulting a morning paper. Without daring to attempt to settle the old young argument. Some one suggests the possibility that the modern scientific game of baseball tends to minimize individual and to emphasize team work. There is one point in the argument, however, which has been overlooked entirely, it seems. When arguing that there are fewer great players today than formrly the veteran disputant invariably includes on his side all the great players of the last 20, yes, 30, years, and leaves his opponent only those of the immediate present. It would be fairer to pit the stars of 1907 against those of 1877, or 1887, or 1897, would it not? And if it comes down to deciding whether or not there have been more great players in the first seven years of the present century, for instance, than in the first seven years of any previous decade, the answer would be in favor of the present, although it may not be true there are more great players this year than there have been in all the previous history of the sport.

SIX ROWING CLUBS HAVE OARSMEN HARD AT WORK FOR REGATTA

OARSMEN from the six St. Louis rowing clubs are training hard for the annual regatta of the Southwestern Amateur Rowing Association, which will be held at Creve Coeur Lake, July 20 and 21, and at least one-third of the men are trying to learn how to swim.

That expert oarsmen who have won championship medals do not know how to swim is a fact, although few of the men that go out in the shells on the river hate to admit that if they were thrown out in seven feet of water with nothing to catch hold of that they would drown.

Louis Grosjean of the St. Louis Rowing Club, who, with his partner, Henry Langehenning, is the favorite to win the junior double at Creve Coeur, has lots of amusement roasting Langhenning on his inability to swim. Langhenning is over six feet tall and weighs about 185 pounds. For three years he has been one of the strongest oarsmen at the St. Louis Rowing Club. Nevertheless, he has never learned to swim. If the frisky rowing shell happened to overturn he would either have to catch the shell or go down. Grosjean made Langhenning the promise that if he doesn't pull his oar strong enough to bring them home a winner at Creve Coeur he will tip the shell and Henry will have to swim to shore.

But Langhenning is not the only oarsman who cannot swim. It is safe to say that at least one-third of the men could not paddle enough to keep their nose above water. The only thing that saves numerous oarsmen from being drowned is the fact that their shells have air-tight compartments, which make them first-class life preservers. Besides the chance of the shells overturning from the slightest false movement of the men in the boat, there is also the possibility of running on a floating log and going to the bottom.

M. A. C. MEMBERS WOULD HAVE A COUNTRY CLUB

ALSO PLAN A ROOF GARDEN

For several months past there has been a quiet but persistent agitation going on among a certain element of the M. A. C. membership as to the desirability of procuring a summer home for the club.

It is understood that the subject was informally discussed by the Board of Governors last year, but nothing tangible resulted from the discussion.

The growing popularity of such organizations as the Country Club, the Normandie, the Glen Echo, the Algonquin and others has served to stimulate the idea of an annex to the M. A. C. These clubs, which are principally located in St. Louis County, have a constantly increasing membership and the expense of their management is much less than if they were located in the business district of the city.

Nevertheless financial considerations seem to be the chief stumbling block of the scheme, although the M. A. C. is now, and has been for some time, in a prosperous and flourishing condition.

The directors are conservative men and they dislike to embark on any project without being fully satisfied as to ways and means.

A roof garden on the M. A. C. building has also been spoken of among some of the members, as a solution of the country home proposition.

This novel idea has many strong supporters, but there is also decided opposition to it, and it is improbable that it will ever be carried out. The principal argument which the country home advocates bring forward in support of their plan is that, on Sundays especially, there is no particular inducement to visit the club. There is a sort of unwritten law that the gymnasium shall not be operated on Sunday, and this is one of the most attractive places at the club.

The club membership has now almost reached its limit, and with a roster of two thousand St. Louisans on its list, the project of a country home does not by any means seem visionary. As already stated, the question of finance is the paramount one in the case. But a prominent member, who is one of the prime movers in the scheme, says that the question of ways and means is not, by any means, the most difficult one to solve in connection with it.

This man says that a bond issue covering the entire expense would be readily taken up by the members, and that the treasury of the club would not be called on for a cent in aid of the project. Available sites, he says, are getting scarcer every day, and there is a steady advance in St. Louis County property, which would make the establishment of a country home more expensive the longer it is delayed.

Many of the M. A. C. members are golf and cricket devotees, and a country annex to the Washington avenue institution would save them the necessity of encroaching on the hospitality of other athletic institutions scattered throughout St. Louis County.

GRAND-LEADERS COME TO LIFE

Tail-End Team in Trolley League Hammers the Leaders in Fast Game.

The surprise of the Trolley League season took place yesterday afternoon at Kulage's Park, when, in the seventh inning, the Grand-Leaders woke up from their long Rip Van Winkle sleep and got next to the fact that batting was one of the principal features of the great national game. It looked as if the entire team came to the conclusion that it was time to make up for past misdeeds, and the batting bee which took place then will be one long remembered by Mr. Rehmer and the balance of the champions. When the smoke had blown away the Leaders had five earned runs to their credit and the star twirler of the League was on the bench, down and out, and Young, who had replaced him, did not feel any too good.

Not satisfied with what they had already done, they started the eighth inning with another bombardment, and after making four hits, one of them a home run by Hepple, with a few errors thrown in by the champions, they had scored five more runs, two of them earned, and Pitcher Cy Young was all but in, and retired in favor of Billy Heath.

IN OUR SET

BEING LITTLE STORIES OF PEOPLE IN THE SPORT WORLD.

STRIPPED of unnecessary verbiage, Barney Reynolds' explanation is that he and his precious protege figured that Burns would be a little more ceremonious about starting in.

WE ARE glad the American championship hovers over the United States, albeit it is held by a person of Sicilian birth and Canadian filtration.

BROOKLYN holds a more comfortable if not a more enviable position in the National League race than Chicago does. Brooklyn can drop a few games without running the risk of being accused of pulling.

THE VERY essential Fielder Jones threatens to retire at the close of the present season and devote his time to the management of his petroleum interests. Mr. Murphy is the only gentleman of our acquaintance who can successfully mix oil and baseball.

ASIDE from the main point at issue, the spectacle of an Australian and a Canadian fighting for the championship of the United States is unique.

IN COMPLIANCE with the wish of the horseowners, in petition expressed, the Latonia Jockey Club feels constrained to hold Cincinnati's beak to the grindstone for 30 days longer.

THE American Turf Association has restored John J. Ryan to good standstanding. You may break, you may shatter the can if you will, but the taint of the ptomaine will cling to it still.

IT APPEARS now that the only objection the Honorable Jockey Club had to the Honorable Mr. Croker's training his horses at Newmarket was based upon a too literal translation of the playful knocks that were wafted over from the side. This is another example of this British interpretation of the American joke.

THE PRELIMINARIES having been deftly arranged and the conditions carefully drawn, the diamond sculls remain in England this year.

IT ALSO should have been remembered that the same James J. Corbett picked Creedon to beat Fitzsimmons. As a picker of winners in important fistic events the ex-pompadour gent gets in pretty light.

CHARLIE ELLISON'S head is beginning to appear above the breast works down there where the bullets are thickest.

WE RATHER suspected that the class of Australian pugilists had gone back a bit when our Jack Johnson drew a home in a select white family where no other boarders were kept.

THERE is murmuring in Gotham because the management of the Giants has been dwarfed into a mere incident in the busy life of John McGraw, some times familiarly addressed as Muggsy. John, it is said, spends more time in studying the dope and having himself laid down by his two turf brokers, Broadway Aleck Smith and Beauteous Tommy Murphy, than he he does to the affairs at the Polo grounds, consequently the ball club is rapidly steering itself up a dark alley.

LAWFTER!

The London Pink 'Un, under the general caption of Crokeriana, cracks the appended merry wheezes. If you think they're funny, lawf:

Mr. Croker is called Boss owing to his swollen head.

Boss and orb being the same thing, Mr. Croker named his horse after himself.

Croker is a nickname only. The owner of the Derby winner suffered much from horseness—we mean hoarseness—in his early youth.

A pleasant anecdote is told of Mr. Croker's childhood days.

Boss Croker has up to now been principally known to fame by his Tammany exploits. Would it not be fair to say after the Derby that his name will now be famous in urbe et Orby?

Sympathy Is Expensive.

WALDRON, Ark., July 6.—It cost G. W. Turner, a local liveryman, $50 to sympathize with a stranger. The latter, giving the name of Craig, rode up to Turner's stable and told him that he was looking for a pair of mules which had been stolen from him and which he believed were some distance away. His horse looked tired and Turner volunteered to loan him a fresh one. Craig road away and shortly afterward Turner was informed that the jaded horse had been stolen. Its owner called for it. Turner located his animal in the possession of O. J. M. Brewer, who had paid $55 for it. Turner bought it back for $50. The thief escaped.

COUNTRY CLUBS TWO CHAMPIONS

Stickney Best at Golf, While McKittrick Holds Honors on the Tennis Courts.

The triumph of Arthur Stickney in the city golf championships and the victory of Ralph McKittrick in the State tennis tournament would seem to indicate that the St. Louis Country Club possesses the most expert and versatile athletes of the city.

The reason of this supremacy may partly lie in the fact that the great majority of the Country Club members are able to give more time to outdoor sports than are the members of other organizations. There is more or less of truth in this, but it scarcely affords the real explanation.

As a matter of fact, the larger part of the Country Club members are not highly proficient in athletics and care little for expert excellency, desiring simply the exhilaration of outdoor exercise, and accordingly the general average of the club in athletics or sport would not be as high as some other associations.

Some Good Athletes.

The real solution is that the club possesses six or seven splendid individual athletes, capable in all branches of sport, who uphold by their efforts the grand reputation of the club. The Wear boys, the Stickneys, the Potters, Ralph McKittrick, and a few more represent the entire competitive strength of the club, but so exceptionable is their ability that event after event is won by them.

This coterie of athletes who go to make up the club's athletic strength are for the great part men who have previously distinguished themselves at college in some of the more energetic and exacting branches of sport and hence bring to their after-athletic endeavors developed physiques, clear understandings of cause and effect, and all the enthusiasm of a university athlete. This strikes the keynote of the club's athletic success.

Triple A Shares.

With Gleeson playing McKittrick in the challenge round and Connett and Anderson successfully defending their title in the doubles, it would appear that the Triple A is entitled to share honors with the Country Club in tennis. The Forest Park club, though small in number and handicapped by limited means, is the most active force for the promotion of the city's amateur sports, and hence it is gratifying to see its efforts crowned with some club successes.

Moving Village in Bohemia.

LONDON, July 4.—The village of Sohrusan, in Bohemia, which was found to be built on a valuable coal bed, has been bought for $500,000 by a speculator and razed to the ground. The inhabitants, who number more than 1000, are rebuilding their houses a mile away.

BROADWAY CLUB SIGNS J. ASHER

Eastern Middleweight Will Be Boxing Instructor for South St. Louis Organization.

Jimmy Asher, a professional boxer, has been appointed boxing instructor of the Broadway Club, 8600 South Broadway. Asher will be expected to develop an amateur boxing team by next fall to take part in the amateur tournaments at the different local clubs.

The Mannion brothers—Ed, Pat and Ben—are all great boxing enthusiasts. Two years ago they got the soldiers at Jefferson Barracks interested in boxing, with the result that two tournaments were held each month at the Barracks last winter. There are a number of men in South St. Louis who will make good boxers. Asher has been appointed club instructor with the stipulation that he is to develop a winning team of about five men to represent the club.

Asher is an Eastern fighter. He is a middleweight and can, therefore, take on and give instructions to the big fellows as well as the featherweights. Asher fought several battles in Illinois recently.

ANOTHER BIG 24 HOUR AUTO RACE PLANNED

Labor Day Meet Being Talked of for the Fair Grounds.

Another 24-hour automobile race besides a series of short distance speed contests for racing machines are being planned for Labor day, Sept. 2. The meet at the Fair Grounds on July 3 and 4 was poorly planned. The 24-hour race was started at 9:30 p. m. on July 3. The best races were held on the afternoon of July 3, when comparatively few persons could get out to see the contests. On July 4, when the big crowd could have gone out to the grounds, there was little attraction in merely two or three touring machines running around the track all day and evening. The finish of the race was about as tame an affair as one could imagine.

J. A. Phillips, the promoter of the meet, had it announced that Lytle and Lohse would drive a car in the race. The machines were not started. But seven cars started, and only two finished. Besides, it was announced that C. A. Coey of Chicago would start. The young Chicago millionaire declared that he was never even approached in regard to competing.

Statements Misleading.

Misleading statements were also made in regard to a number of other well-known drivers who were supposed to be coming. They did not appear. Touring cars, runabouts and a stripped touring car or two furnished all of the contests.

The fearless driving of Fred Grinham in the races Wednesday afternoon and of Henry Suttkus in the Cadillac, were about the only redeeming features of the meet. They took chances at every turn and seemed the only drivers who really understood how to make high speed. Grinham has won races after race at St. Louis for the last three years, so his victories were expected.

For the meet for Labor Day it is planned to start a 24-hour race at 2:30 p. m. on the afternoon of Sunday, Sept. 1. With the big entry list of high-grade cars from the best factories in the country, with the best professional drivers to handle them, the race would prove a strong drawing card, especially as there would be about a dozen car entered.

BANKER TRIES TO FOIL CUPID

Opposes Daughter's Suitor and Brother Beats Wooer in a Fight.

SWEETHEARTS RUN AWAY

Row Starts When the Girl Is Forbidden to Accompany Young Man.

Miss Irene Quinn, daughter of Thomas Quinn, president of the Bank of Eureka, is missing from her home near Eureka, St. Louis County, following a street fight between her brother, Leo Quinn, and her suitor, John Behm.

Behm, who is 22 years old, has also been absent from his home in Eureka since Sunday afternoon, when Miss Quinn disappeared.

Miss Quinn's parents objected to Behm's attention to their daughter, and she was forbidden to accompany him to a Fourth of July celebration which they had planned to attend.

Leaving home in spite of her parents, she went with Behm to a celebration at Cedar Hill, Jefferson County. The distance was too great to return the same day, and she spent Thursday night at the home of Behm's married sister, near Cedar Hill.

When they returned Friday, Behm, yielding to the girl's entreaties, did not drive all the way to the Quinn house, but turned back a short distance away and left her to walk home.

There was an angry scene with her father, and Miss Quinn left home and went to the home of one of her brothers, whose wife is Behm's sister.

Leo Quinn, the brother, took his father's view of the matter, and meeting Behm in Eureka, quarreled with him. They fought, and Behm worsted Quinn. A large crowd saw the combat, which was in the main street of the town.

BURGLAR STEPPED ON ROLLER SKATE

Noise Caused by His Fall Alarmed Saunders Norvell and Miscreant Ran.

Burglars within the past few days have made raids on several residences in fashionable Cabanne, west of Union avenue. So far as is known they have stolen nothing.

An attempt was made to enter the residence of Saunders Norvell, president of the Norvell-Shapleigh Hardware Co., at 5337 Cabanne avenue, the night of July 4. The burglar climbed through a window into a closet, but instead of stepping on a smooth floor, his foot struck one of a pair of roller skates. The skate took him rolling to the floor. In his fall he struck some canoe paddles leaning against the wall, and they came down with a crash.

Mr. Norvell heard the noise and went downstairs to investigate. When he reached the lower floor the burglar was not to be found, though the open window and the fallen paddles told of his visit.

"I went downstairs very slowly," said Mr. Norvell to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "and gave him plenty of time to get away. There was nothing taken from the house."

The residence of Edward B. Wilder, 5602 Maple avenue, whose family is out of the city, was also entered. The burglar ransacked the entire house and opened several boxes, but it is believed nothing was taken.

The residence at 5665 Maple avenue was entered through a cellar window. A door leading from the cellar into the kitchen was forced open, the bolt being bent, and the door splintered. Nothing was taken from this residence.

HALT IN THE STOCK RISE; WATCH NAVAL MOVEMENTS

Anticipation of Developments, the Cause—Recognition of Move by Japan Would Cause Big Decline in Securities.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 8.—3 p. m.—The close came on a decline and close to the low point for the day over the entire list. The average loss for the day was 1½ to 2 points. St. Paul, Great Northern, Louisville & Nashville and Delaware & Hudson were exceptions to the decline.

NEW YORK, July 8, 12:30 p. m.—With very much better trading, 400,000 shares being sold to noon, the stock market hardly held its own during the forenoon. The decline in the leading rail stocks amounted to 1½ points, and losses about equal to that prevailed on the industrial side.

Western Union Telegraph declined 3½ points to —½. St. Paul and Great Northern lost fractionally from the high point of the forenoon, and the declines in Union and Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Reading, New York Central, L. & N., Erie first preferred and Pennsylvania, averaged about 1½ points. Gold amounting to $1,100,000 was engaged for export. Call money ruled at 5½ per cent.

NEW YORK, July 8, 9:30 a. m.—The stock market opened Monday very nearly on a parity with the London opening, which was ⅛d to ¼d lower. At this point the opening was an average of ⅛c to ½c lower, but the market tone was good and trading active at the start.

While the feeling is not pronounced, anticipation as to what is to come out of the Government's move in sending the Atlantic squadron into Pacific waters keeps a check on the market, and should there be any movement on the part of Japan in recognition of the move made by the United States, there would be a decline in stocks.

The situation on the New York stock market at the close Saturday, in fact for Friday and Saturday, influenced a much better or stronger feeling both in London and Paris, and the end of the week news from those markets indicated a strong opening Monday for them so far as American stocks are concerned, and a higher opening for this point. London, however, came ⅛d to ¼d lower Monday, and it was stated that the alteration in the generally bouyant feeling that prevailed in London Friday and Saturday is due to the maneuvers of American naval vessels and the discussion or doubt raised as to the real purpose of the movement of the American Atlantic squadron into Pacific waters.

CLUBS OPEN; SIX MEN ARRESTED

County Deputy Sheriff Visits Three Resorts.

All the so-called clubs of St. Louis County were open all day Sunday in defiance of the county officials. They were not allowed to go entirely unmolested.

Acting upon orders of Sheriff Herpel, Deputy A. J. Shores, at the Louisiana Club, arrested Mark Boetter, acting secretary; D. E. Johnson, bartender, and Lee Scott, a waiter. At the New Era Hunting and Fishing Club, Ed Dodge, a waiter, was arrested, and at the Lafayette Club, at Meramec Highlands, Shores arrested William S. Rosenberg and Benjamin Deck. The cases will be laid before Prosecuting Attorney Johnston Monday.

Most of the county saloons and roadhouses were closed.

At their preliminary hearing Monday all of the men arrested were held in $200 bonds to appear before Justice Campbell at Clayton next Friday.

EX-MAYOR ZIEGENHEIN'S SON HELD FOR AUTO ACCIDENT

Although Running Slowly He Hits a Tailor Alighting From a Car.

Henry Ziegenhein Jr. of 3321 South Thirteenth street, son of former Mayor Ziegenhein, is under a $500 bond, charged with disturbing the peace by seriously injuring Julius Bonger, a tailor, 915 Chouteau avenue, while running his auto.

The accident occurred at Magnolia and Grand avenues. Ziegenhein was going south on Grand avenue at a rate of five miles an hour. At Magnolia avenue, Bonger, who had just alighted from a car, walked in front of the machine. Ziegenhein attempted to stop the auto, and witnesses state that it had almost come to a stop when it struck Bonger. Bonger received a fracture of the left arm and collar bone, besides minor bruises about the face and shoulders.

WHEAT SHARPLY LOWER FOR DAY

Better Weather and Conditions Caused Heavy Selling and Demand Poor.

CASH PRICES WERE LOWER

Coarse Grains Relatively Firm—Wheat Visible Increased—Afloat Stocks Decreased.

Local wheat was offered down steadily Monday and at the close July wheat was 1½@1⅝c lower for the day at 89⅝@89¾c sellers. September wheat 1c lower at 92⅝c sellers, and December wheat ⅝c lower at 96⅛c sellers. Liverpool wheat closed ⅛d to ½d lower, Berlin wheat ½c lower and Budapest wheat 5⅝c higher. The visible supply of wheat increased 304,000 bu and now amounts to 45,853,000 bu, against a decrease of 935,000 bu, with 24,957,000 bu in sight at the same time last year. World's shipments of wheat were 10,112,000 bu, against 9,760,000 bu last week and 9,920,000 bu a year ago. Wheat and flour on ocean passage decreased 1,720,000 bu.

The local market was quite active and trading was on a good scale. The tendency was steadily downward, though there were several temporary strong spots. Prices were nervous throughout.

There were beneficial rains in South Dakota and Minnesota and the outlook in the Northwest is much improved, though unfavorable reports, with the backward and uneven growth as the chief complaint continue to come from North Dakota. Thresning returns from Kansas are becoming more satisfactory and many experts are revising their estimates of the crop of that State to from 60,000,000 bu to 70,000,000 bu. The lower cables, caused mainly by Saturday's decline here and much larger shipments from Russia than were expected, encouraged the selling, and, though the opening was firm, prices broke immediately after the start and declined to about a cent under Saturday's close.

September wheat opened ⅛c higher at 93¾c, advanced to 94c, and declined to 92½c. December was bid up to 97⅝c before a sale was made, and quickly offered down, the opening being ¾c lower at 96¼c, and a further decline to 95⅞c was made in the forenoon. Country acceptances of wheat were very heavy, and the Western demand for shipment was very light, and the expectation that new wheat will be pressing the market in a short time also acted as a depressant on prices. Prices moved nervously in the late part of the session, a recovery to 93¼c for September being followed by a further decline to 92c. Late in the day Jones' report on the Northwestern wheat crop, stating that with the most perfect weather only a fair crop can be raised, and pointing out the danger of early frosts as the plant is away late, caused a sharp upturn, and despite the bearish visible supply statement, September wheat again advanced to 93c. A good export business is being done at the decline and a good volume of wheat was worked for abroad today. The demand was light, and offerings again began to appear just before the close, and September wheat sold down to 92½c and closed at 92⅝c, 1c lower for the day. December wheat, after fluctuating nervously in a rather narrow range, closed with offerings at 96⅛c, ¾c below Saturday's wind-up.

Cash wheat was in poor demand and prices were lower. Primary receipts of wheat were 770,973 bu, against 674,313 bu last year, and shipments were 453,215 bu, against 335 bu last year. Local receipts were 17,399 bu, against 160,014 bu last year, and shipments were 23,460 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 570,000 bu.

Corn was weak early in the day. The weather is much improved and, though receipts are running light, there was some selling on the large acceptances from the country, the backward shipping demand and the weakness in wheat. September corn opened ⅛@¼c lower at 54¼c, declined to 54⅛c, rallied to 54½c and declined to 53⅞c, and December opened ¼@⅜c lower at 51⅝c, went as high as 51⅞c and declined to 51⅝c.

Late in the day there was some firmness caused by the ¼d higher cables and the fact that the market had been pretty well liquidated of long corn and that there was a large short interest in the market, the latter contingent starting some scattered covering. September closed ⅛@¼c lower at 54¼c and December advanced to 52⅛c and closed unchanged for the day at 51⅞@52c. The visible supply of corn increased 1,085,000 bu and now amounts to 9,779,000 bu, against a decrease of 466,000 bu, with 5,573,000 bu in sight at the same time last year. World's shipments of corn were 7,523,000 bu, against 7,873,000 bu last week and 4,892,000 bu a year ago. Corn on ocean passage increased 1,191,000 bu.

Local receipts of corn were 64,900 bu, against 116,600 bu last year, and shipments were 54,155 bu. Clearances of corn for the day were 411,000 bu.

Cash oats were rather scarce, and prices ruled about steady. Primary receipts of oats were 402,455 bu, against 506,205 bu last year, and shipments were 220,695 bu, against 533,000 bu last year. Local receipts of oats were 88,000 bu, against 80,000 bu last year, and shipments were 56,010 bu. Oats clearances were none.

ST. LOUIS STOCK LIST IS HIGHER AND NOT ACTIVE

Little Doing in Bank and Trust Issues—Traction Stocks and Bonds and Chicago Equipment Are the Features.

Sale prices and bid and asked quotations again indicated further advance for stocks Monday. The forenoon session of the St. Louis Stock Exchange opened with sales of shares of the Chicago Railway Equipment at 5 cents per share over the price on which heavy sales were made Saturday. The house buying the stock offered 8.85 for more, but holders were not willing to trade.

When the market opened on the traction stocks, the preferred showed at 68⅜ bid, but none for sale. When the bid was advanced to 68½ there was limited selling for less than 100 shares and the price then stiffened and was advanced by bidders to 68⅝. At this point a few selling orders were heard from through various houses at 69½, and the figures were at that at the close.

Traction 4 per cent bonds were in demand investors offering 80¾ for them. The holders wanted 81⅛ and there was no trading in the bonds. Common stock was not quoted.

One odd lot of Mississippi Valley Trust stock was sold at 300 and 302 was asked subsequently. But the bank and trust list was firm on inquiry, although the transactions were limited. An exception was Missouri-Lincoln Trust, 112½ bid, 113 asked.

FINANCIAL.

Call money on the New York Stock Exchange opened at 5 per cent Monday.

Messrs. George H. Burr & Co., commercial paper brokers, 304-5-6 Security Building, report local money: Indorsed bills receivable, 4 to 6 months, 5½ per cent; high-grade and single-name paper, 4 to 6 months, 5½ to 6 per cent; other names, not so well known, 6 per cent on first-class security. Money market steady; demand for money continues good.

Local bank clearings and balances: Clearings for Monday, $2,248,745; last week, $10,611,813; balances for today, $1,466,043; last week, $1,187,456; increase clearings, $1,631,662; increase balances, $278,587.

For all dates money seems to be firm at 5 to 6 per cent. None of the bankers are lending heavily at the present, and the customary midsummer quiet will probably rule from this time on, now that the July 1st activity has passed. Commercial paper is still being taken in moderate amounts for country institutions. Collections are reported to be quite satisfactory.

HOT WEATHER KILLS ICEMAN

One man is dead and another is recovering from Sunday's heat. The dead man is Walter Clark, a negro of 2820 Olive street. Clark is an iceman and dropped dead in the kitchen of a house of 2632 Pine street. He was employed by the A. W. Hutchinson Ice Co.

While working in the Laclede avenue car sheds, A. V. Sutherland of 4200 West Belle place was overcome. He was taken home.

Father Sees Train Crush Boy.

Charles Kahlert, 5 years old of 2842 Magnolia avenue, whose right leg was badly mangled when an Iron Mountain train ran over him Sunday at Chouteau avenue and Main street, is at the City Hospital in a critical condition. The boy had run ahead of his parents and did not see the train that backed up Main street. The father, seeing the child's danger, ran for him but saw him crushed.

S.S.S. CURES CATARRH

Catarrh is not merely a disease of the mucous membranes and inner linings of the body as some of the symptoms would seem to indicate; it is a deep-seated blood disease, in which the entire circulation and the greater part of the system are involved. Like all other blood diseases, Catarrh comes from poisons and impurities accumulating in the circulation which irritate and inflame the tissues and mucous surfaces, and then the unpleasant symptoms of the disease are manifested. There is a ringing noise in the ears, a thin, watery discharge from the nostrils, filthy matter drops back into the throat, the breath has an offensive odor, and many other annoying and unpleasant symptoms are characteristic of the trouble. Sprays, washes, inhalations, etc., cannot reach the blood, and are therefore valuable only for the temporary relief they afford. To cure Catarrh the blood must be purified. Nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose; it goes down into the circulation, removes the catarrhal matter, purifies the blood and makes a lasting cure. When S. S. S. has removed the cause, the blood being pure and healthy nourishes the membranes and tissues instead of irritating them with noxious matter, and the symptoms all pass away. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

FOOT OF SKIN IS GRAFTED ON HERO

Twenty Friends Give Up Epidermis to Save Brave Chicago Motorman.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, July 8.—John Maloney, the motorman, who averted disaster on a Chicago & Oak Park elevated train May 15 by sticking to his post in the midst of flames with his clothing ablaze until a station was reached, underwent the operation of skin-grafting at St. Ann's Hospital.

Twenty of his friends surrendered sections of their skin for the benefit of their suffering comrade and the operation was said by surgeons to be one of the largest of the kind ever performed. About seven square inches of epidermis was taken from each man.

The operation required two hours and at the end of that time over a square foot, or about one hundred and fifty square inches of skin, had been grafted on the burned sections of the patient. The operation was pronounced a success.

POLICE ATTACKED BY SALOON CROWD

Four Men Raid North Broadway Place and Make Two Prisoners After Fight.

A gang headed by James Collins, better known as "Jimmy, the rat," attacked Policemen Austerman and Dender of the Carr Street District, Sunday afternoon, when they attempted to arrest Thomas Heaney, a bartender in the saloon conducted by Thomas Owens at 1031 North Broadway. The officers put up a game fight, but were outnumbered and in danger of being worsted when Officers Thornhill and Lardner went to their rescue. Heaney and Collins were taken to the Carr Street Station, the former charged with selling beer on Sunday and the latter with interfering with the police.

Capt. O'Malley Sunday detailed Austerman and Dender, both new policemen and unknown in the neighborhood, to go to the saloon and see if the "lid" was being lifted. The officers experienced no difficulty in purchasing two bottles of beer. When they arrested Heaney they were set upon by a half-dozen men. All but Heaney and "the rat" escaped.

A NEW DEPARTURE FOR ST. LOUIS

The Honor of Being the Largest Shoe Manufacturing Center Already Snatched From the East.

Now to Establish Herself as the Designer and Builder of High-Grade Shoes.

Those who are posted know that St. Louis makes more pairs of shoes than any city in the world. It will be information not generally known when we say that Brockton, Mass., the largest Eastern shoe manufacturing center, makes about 50,000 pairs of shoes daily, while St. Louis manufacturers construct daily about 90,000 pairs, thus proving beyond question that St. Louis is today the largest shoe manufacturing center in the world.

Having established herself as the city that produces more pairs of shoes, and having built up this enormous output on the honest quality of shoes constructed for the masses and sold at popular prices, now one of the largest shoe manufacturers in the city takes the lead and proposes to establish for this market a reputation on men's high-grade shoes to retail at $5 and $6.

The Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Co. have just completed a large new factory which is to manufacture exclusively men's high-grade shoes. This factory will be ready to begin work July 15, and will be welcomed by St. Louis shoemakers, who desire to be known as high-grade, artistic shoe builders.

The proficient shoemaker will find in this plant a permanent home where he will be in a class at the top of his chosen profession, where high quality alone will be the standard. Not every shoemaker is in love with his work or can acquire the art of perfection; but in every company of workmen there are a few who can and do become expert. For this class this new model factory will be a place where their highest ideals can be realized, and as a result St. Louis-made high-grade shoes will soon become a standard of perfection.

We, as a city, are proud of our shoe industry, for it represents an annual output of sixty million dollars, and furnishes employment to over thirty thousand shoemakers. And, we are pleased to announce, another step forward that will soon make this city the established market for high-grade $5 and $6 shoes. No doubt other St. Louis manufacturers will soon take the same step and lend their help to the accomplishment of this result, which will greatly increase the demand for high-grade St. Louis-made shoes that cannot be excelled in artistic appearance, high quality and expert workmanship.

P. I. Atkin of 3536 McKean avenue was slightly bruised and his 20-months-old baby was seriously injured in alighting from a Southampton car at Old Manchester and McCree avenues Sunday night.

The lowering of Old Manchester avenue at this point made a distance of four or five feet from the car step to the ground. Atkin says that he was not aware of this when returning home with the baby in his arms. In stepping from the car he fell, the baby's head striking the rail.

The baby has a contur- on the head.

St. Louis Telegraphers Meet.

At a special meeting of Local No. 3, Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, at Anchor Hall, Jefferson and Park avenues, called Sunday afternoon, to discuss the strike situation on the Pacific Coast, a resolution commending President Small and the Executive Board, and offering full allegiance, in case of a general strike, were adopted. There were 300 present, one-fourth being women. All the speakers expressed the hope that the situation might be settled without a general strike.

Why the Food Law Does Not Affect Clymer's Temtors

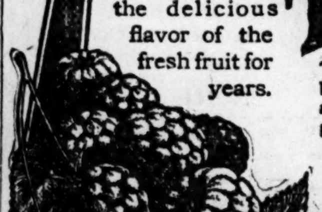

Fruits preserved with the purest sugar but with an inferior quality of fruit will meet the requirements of any food law. But TEMTORS are above that law, they must have the requirements of quality. We choose the rich, luscious fruit and select only perfect berries, the kind intended for your own table. We preserve them with the purest sugar in spotless modern kitchens.

No food law, with the most drastic provisions, would necessitate a change in Temtors.

Vacuum Seal

This draws off the air from the top of the jar and keeps it air-proof. Temtors retain the delicious flavor of the fresh fruit for years.
